PREFACE

TO THE NEW EDITION.

The Ormulum was first edited from the original Manuscript in the Bodleian Library, and enriched with Notes and a Glossary by Robert Meadows White, D.D., late Fellow of St. Mary Magdalen College, and formerly Professor of Anglo-Saxon in the University of Oxford. In this new edition the Editor has carefully corrected the Text by collation with the MS. in the Bodleian Library: he has revised, and added somewhat to, the Notes—both those to the Homilies and to the Glossary: he has verified every single reference in the Glossary; corrected very numerous errors in it; and, he trusts, has made some useful additions to it. But, chiefly, he has spared no time or labour in revising the cognate words[1] in Anglo-Saxon and other languages, and largely adding to them; thus endeavouring to make this part of the work as perfect and complete as possible. How far he may have succeeded in what he has proposed to himself, he must leave to the judgment of others. In many places additions made by himself have been inclosed within square brackets, generally with his initials added; so that the Editor of the former edition might not be held responsible by any one for what was really his own: but the corrections throughout the whole work, and the additions to the Glossary, were so numerous and extensive, that it was found impossible to follow this plan in every case, at least without quite disfiguring the book. Rather than do this, he preferred leaving the alterations and additions made in this edition to be fully seen only by comparing it with the original edition.

The Editor desires gratefully to record his obligations to his much-valued friend Dr. Bosworth, the late venerable Professor of Anglo-Saxon, for assistance cheerfully rendered him with respect to several of the cognate words added to the Glossary: and also to the Rev. John Earle, M.A., now a second time Professor of Anglo-Saxon in the University, for kindly revising, and adding somewhat to the completeness of, the continuation of Dr. White's History of Anglo-Saxon Literature, which in this edition is brought down to the present time.

PREFACE.

It has been the fate of Anglo-Saxon learning, since the earliest undisputed facts of its revival in this country, to have had alternate periods of cultivation and neglect. The possession by the monks of Tavistock of a fount of Saxon type, and the issue of books from a Saxon press, would appear to rest on tradition alone, there being no surviving evidence of the quality, extent, or even existence of their productions. The honours of the first revival of Anglo-Saxon learning at the commencement of the Reformation appear to be justly shared between the royal antiquary John Leland, and his friend Robert Talbot, in the reign of Henry the Eighth, and Matthew Parker, raised to the primacy on the accession of Queen Elizabeth. The two former take the lead as collectors of MSS., and the latter in giving to the world the first specimen of Anglo-Saxon[1], and the first book known to have been printed in that language in England. The well-directed exertions of the Archbishop, through his agents both in this country and abroad, led, as is well known, to the discovery and preservation of many invaluable monuments and remains. While securing these from further dispersion by providing for their being deposited in the public library, and in that of Corpus Christi College at Cambridge, his employment and patronage of contemporaries produced important fruits. To the labours thus encouraged of John Joscelyn, the Primate's secretary, of William Lambarde, record-keeper of the Tower of London, and of Foxe the Martyrologist, we owe the first editions respectively of Ælfric's Paschal Homily[2], with his two Epistles to Wulfstan,

[1] A book entitled 'The Defence of Priests' Marriages,' written, as Strype supposes, either by Sir Rd. Moryson or John Ponet Bishop of Winchester, both of whom died in exile at Strasburg, was printed with a preface by Parker in 1562. In a few copies of this work, intended probably for presents, are 'enlargements in which some of the allegations,' according to Strype, 'are set down in the Saxon tongue.' v. Strype's L. of Abp. Parker, b. iv. c. xlv. vol. ii. pp. 445-452. 8vo. Oxford, 1821.

[2] The Paschal Homily and Epistles of Ælfric, with the Lord's Prayer from the 6th chap. of St. Matthew, preceded by vv. 7, 8, 9, and followed by the Creed and nine commandments from the Decalogue, as prefixed to the copies of Alfred's Laws, the whole being accompanied with an English translation, are contained in a book which bears this title, 'A Testimonie of Antiqvitie, shewing the auncient fayth in the Church of England touching the sacrament of the body and bloude of the Lord here publikely preached, and also receaued in the Saxons tyme, aboue 600. yeares agoe. Jeremie 6. Goe into the streetes, and inquyre for the olde way: and if it be the good and ryght way, then goe therin, that ye maye finde rest for your soules. But they say: we will not walke therein. Imprinted at London by John Day, dwelling ouer Aldersgate beneath S. Martyns. Cum priuilegio Regiæ Maiestatis.' The book is printed without date, but Wanley in his Catalogue, p. 326, places it in 1567, and Strype about 1566. The following title at p. 19 is prefixed to the Homily, 'A Sermon of the Paschall Lambe, and of the sacramentall body and bloud of Christ our Sauiour, written in the olde Saxon toungue before the Conquest, and appoynted in the reigne of the Saxons to be spoken unto the people at Easter, before they shoulde receaue the Communion, and now first translated into our common Englishe speche.' The authorship of the preface is attributed by some to Joscelyn, but by Strype to Parker; it contains however a passage scarcely consistent with that peculiar reserve and humblemindedness which distinguished the Archbishop. We are told at fol. 3. a. that 'diuerse of these bookes (of sermons) haue bene deliuered into the handes of the moste reuerend father, Matthewe Archbyshop of Canterburye, by whose diligent search for such writings of historye, and other monumentes of antiquitie, as might reueale vnto vs what hath ben the state of our church in England from tyme to tyme, these thynges that bee here made knowen vnto thee, do come to lyght.' The learned President of Magdalen College, in his notes on Ælfric's Epistles, printed in his 'Scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum Opuscula,' considers Foxe to have assisted in the composition of the preface. His words are, 'Cum vero in Martyrologio Joannis Foxi, quod pleraque horum Ælfrici excerptorum præstat, res eædem narrentur, et in rebus narrandis ratio congruat cum hac præfatione, nulla tamen facta ejus mentione, fert mea opinio, ipsum Foxum, qui favente archiepiscopo anno 1571 Evangeliorum interpretationem Saxonicam typis imprimendam curavit, præfationem quidem partim conscripsisse. Quin et extant in Martyrologio hæc verba Foxi; "There is yet remaining one certain piece, a fragment of an Epistle of Elfricus, in the library of Worcester, wherein so much as maketh against the matter of transubstantiation we found (nos invenimus) in the middle of the said Latin Epistle utterly rased out, so that no letter nor piece of a letter doth there appear." Foxi Martyrolog. vol. ii. p. 378. edit. ann. 1684. Confer verba Præfationis Testimonii Antiquitatis, fol. 4. b. et fol. 5. a.' The editor of the 'Testimonie,' in stating at the end of the book that he took the commandments from the laws of Alfred, notes the omission of the second, but it is remarkable that he does not add the 23rd ver. of the 20th chap. of Exodus, which appears in the Archæonomia and in subsequent editions of Alfred's laws as the tenth commandment. John Day, a native of Dunwich in Suffolk, the printer, having been employed by the Archbishop to cut Saxon types in brass, till then unknown, probably used them for the first time in the pages of this book. v. Preface to Asser Menev. Strype's Life, b. iii. c. xv. vol. i. p. 473, and his 'Observations,' &c. §. 1. vol. ii. p. 492; Scr. Eccl. ii. p. 179; and editor's 'Notes' at ll. 4388–4927.

[3] The laws are those of Ine, Alfred, Alfred and Guthrum, Edward the Elder, Edward and Guthrum, Æthelstan, Edmund, Edgar, Ethelred, and Canute. They were published in a 4to volume, with a Latin translation, and entitled 'Αρχαιονομια, sive, De priscis Anglorum Legibus libri, sermone Anglico, vetustate Antiquissimo, aliquot abhinc seculis conscripti, atque nunc demum, magno iurisperitorum, et amantium antiquitatis omnium commodo, è tenebris in lucem vocati. Gulielmo Lambardo interprete. Londini, ex officina Joannis Daii An. 1568.'

[4] 'The Gospels of the fower Euangelistes, translated in the olde Saxons tyme out of Latin into the vulgar toung of the Saxons, newly press out of the documents which had been collected, whatever may be the critical value of Lambarde's contribution, distinguishes the first restoration of Anglo-Saxon learning as a testimony to the purity of the reformed faith, and a patriotic offering to the institutions of the country. In the year 1587 a Saxon charter of William the Conqueror was printed in Holinshed's Chronicles, but from this date till 1623 there followed an interval of comparative neglect; the master-mind had been withdrawn on the decease of Archbishop Parker, and, notwithstanding the existence of an Antiquarian Society[5] but recently founded by the Archbishop, no patron of equal energy and learning had yet appeared. Some continental scholars indeed, stimulated probably by the search for MSS. abroad, and by the works which had been published in England, already turned their studies in a similar direction. In 1597 we find Bonaventura Vulcanius editing from the Plantin press at Leyden two anonymous treatises[6] on the Language and Alphabet of the collected out of Auncient Monumentes of the sayd Saxons, and now published for testimonie of the same. (.·.) At London. Printed by John Daye, dwelling ouer Aldersgate, 1571. Cum Priuilegio Regiæ Majestatis per Decennium.' Prefixed is a Dedication to Queen Elizabeth, consisting of ten pages, written by Foxe.

[5] V. a note in 'Letters of Eminent Literary Men,' p. 100, in which Sir H. Ellis traces the origin of the present Society of Antiquaries to literary meetings held by H. Wanley and others in 1707, as shewn by extracts from Harleian MS. 7055.

[6] 'De Literis et Lingua Getarum sive Gothorum. Item De Notis Lombardicis. Quibus accesserunt Specimina variarum Linguarum, quarum Indicem pagina quæ Præfationem sequitur ostendit. Editore Bon. Vvlcanio Brugensi. Lugduni Batavorum, Ex officina Plantiniana, Apud Franciscum Raphelengium. MDXCVII.' Archbishop Usher, in a letter addressed to F. Junius, printed at p. 14 of his 'Glossarium Gothicum,' at the end of the remarks on the Gothic alphabet, is disposed to attribute at least the first of these treatises to Antonius Morellon, secretary to Cardinal Granvelle, and the reputed discoverer of the Codex Argenteus, thus concurring with Vulcanius in his notice

Goths, with versions of the Angel's Salutation of the Virgin, the Magnificat, the Song of Simeon, and the Lord's Prayer from the Codex Argenteus, then preserved in the Abbey of Werden in Westphalia. To these he added the list of Teutonic words which Busbequius, when resident at Constantinople as ambassador from Germany, found current in the Tauric Chersonese. Among other matter follows King Alfred's Epistle to the Bishops of his kingdom, prefixed to his Paraphrase of St. Gregory's Pastoral Care, and addressed in this instance to Wulfsige, Bishop of London. For the last extract, which is printed in Roman type, with an English interlinear translation, Vulcanius seems to have been indebted to Archbishop Parker, who published in 1574 the Epistle at the end of his edition of Asser's History of Alfred. Yet Camden saw reason to fear that 'in few yeares devouring time would utterly swallow the studie[7]' of Saxon antiquities, a fate which he endeavoured to avert, first, by reprinting in 1603[8], in his collection of English Historians, Alfred's Epistle, and secondly, by publishing in 1605 'Remaines con-of the supposed author at fol. 4. a. of his preface. It may be observed that the extract in the second treatise, headed 'Salutatio Angelica,' consists of the Salutation by the Angel, and of part of the Salutation by Elizabeth, from St. Luke i. vv. 28, 42. The extracts from the Codex Argenteus are in several places inaccurate, instances occurring where letters are mistaken, and the initial syllables of words transferred to those preceding them. As these inaccuracies are not found among the 'Errata,' they were probably occasioned by a faulty transcript. v. Travels into Turkey, translated from the Latin of A. G. Busbequius, London, MDCCXLIV, and Ulfilas, Lipsiæ, 1843, Prolegom. p. xii.

cerning Britaine,' in which appears a chronological series of versions of the Lord's Prayer[9], with incidental notices of Anglo-Saxon sources of names of persons and families[10].

[9] It may be fit to notice here that Jerome Megiser, who published at Frankfort in 1593 forty versions of the Lord's Prayer, and in 1603 fifty versions of the same, thus heads the Welsh version, 'Anglo Saxonice, seu lingua Vallica et vetere Britannica;' but I am informed by Mr. Coxe that the A. S. version of the Prayer is omitted in both editions.

[10] Camden professes to have taken the first of the versions of the Lord's Prayer (p. 22) 'from the ancientst' that he could find, 'written about 900 yeare since, about the yeare of Christ 700, found in ancient Saxon glossed Evangelists, in the hands of' his 'good friend M. Robert Bowyer, written by Eadfride the eight Bishop of Lindisfarne, (which after was translated to Durham,) and divided according to the ancient Canon of Eusebius.' Sir Frederick Madden, in a letter to Sir H. Ellis, has the following notice of this MS., now in the Cotton Library (Nero D. iv), and called St. Cuthbert's Gospels, from its having been written in honour of that Saint; and also called the 'Durham Book,' from its having been deposited with the monks there some time after its removal from Lindisfarne: 'The Latin Text of St. Cuthbert's Gospels is that of the Vulgate of St. Jerome, and must have been written between 698 and 721, during which period Bishop Eadfrith held the see of Lindisfarne. The Northumbrian gloss was added after the volume had been brought to Durham, which took place about 875. . . . . I am inclined to believe that the date of 950 will approximate more closely to the period when the version was made than any other.' v. 'Letters,' No. CXIV. note. Having observed considerable variation between the version as printed by Camden and that given by Wanley in his Catalogue from the same source, the editor requested Sir F. Madden to favour him by collating the two texts with that in the original MS. The following reply, containing a valuable testimony to Wanley's accuracy, as well as a suggestion for a title of the MS. more correct than that of the 'Durham Book,' is inserted here by Sir Frederick Madden's kind permission.

British Museum,
23 March, 1852.

DEAR SIR,

I HAVE compared the texts of the Lord's Prayer given by Wanley and Camden with the Cotton MS. Nero D. iv, and the result proves (what might have been expected from Wanley's known accuracy) that he is right to a letter, whereas the transcript in Camden is falsified and corrupted. Of course no reliance can be placed on other extracts

In these notices, taken in connection with the more copious etymologies of names, titles, and offices given by Richard given by him. In regard to the date of the Lindisfarne Gospels, in affirming it to be between 698–721, the period when Eadfrith was Bishop, I avoid all controversy, but I must admit that Selden, Smith, Wanley, and others suppose that Eadfrith wrote the volume when he was a simple monk, and previous to St. Cuthbert's death, which took place in 687. The latter part of this hypothesis I am not disposed to admit, for as the volume is stated expressly to have been executed in honour of Saint Cuthbert, it is not probable to have been undertaken with that view till after his decease. The chronology is therefore narrowed between the year 687 and 721, the date of Eadfrith's death. Æthelwald his successor was not made Bishop till 724, and I conceive that he must have added the ornaments of the volume at the same period when it was written.

If you look into Raine's History of North Durham, vol. iv. p. 67, you will see a statement put forth that, although this precious MS. was carried off by the monks in their flight from Lindisfarne to Durham, yet that it was taken back when the Priory was colonized anew at the close of the 11th century. Raine's words are, 'At length it (the MS.) reached Durham with the other treasures of the Church, and there it remained until Lindisfarne rose again from its ashes, and became peopled by a colony of monks; when it was carried back to its original home, and regularly formed an item in the Inventories of the Priory of Holy Island until the Dissolution.' This statement seems to be borne out by the entry in an Inventory of the Priory in the year 1367, in which the volume is described as 'Liber Sancti Cuthberti, qui demersus erat in mare;' and Raine further argues that, had the volume been kept at Durham at the period of the Reformation, it would not have been taken away from the other MSS. which still remain in that noble library. At the same time it must be allowed that there are some difficulties in admitting this statement. Turgot expressly states that, when he wrote (about 1100), this volume was then preserved in the church at Durham; and in the 'Index Reliquiarum Ecclesiæ Dunelmensis,' printed by Smith, Append. to Beda, p. 740, and drawn up in 1372, we find, 'Item, liber Sancti Cuthberti, cum textu Evangeliorum.' In the MS. also of the Historia Minor Dunelmensis Ecclesiæ, MS. Cotton, Claud. D. iv, Turgot's words are repeated, and a hand of the 15th century notes in the margin, 'Quod Eadfridus et Ethelwoldus episcopi textum Evangeliorum S. Cuthberti, qui nunc est inter reliquias Dunelmens. fecerunt.' I must leave this question open to further proof on either side, but I am of opinion that, taking into consideration the fact of the MS. having been Verstegan in the 'Restitution of Decayed Intelligence[11],' grounds were laid for a vocabulary of our mother-tongue. The Saxon press in England had now ceased to lend its aid to the student, but means were still in progress for rescuing the language from oblivion. At a period when, as Bishop Gibson observes, 'little assistance could be expected from conversation in a study which few regarded,' the philological and antiquarian tastes of Sir Henry Spelman were attaining maturity. The zeal and pecuniary resources of Sir Robert Cotton were at the same time devoted to the collection of those materials for investigation, which so eminently connect his name with the literary archives of the nation.

The second revival of Anglo-Saxon learning is usually assigned to William L'Isle of Wilburgham, by his publication in the year 1623 of Ælfric's Treatise on the Old and New Testament, with a reprint of the Paschal Homily and the Epistles to Wulfstan and Wulfsine. In noticing, this, the most important public[12] record of L'Isle's enterprise and written, illuminated, and bound at Lindisfarne, and the probability of its having been restored to its original place of deposit, the more correct designation of this volume would be the Lindisfarne Gospels, and not the Durham Gospels. I have only to add, that through the liberality of the present Bishop of Durham this invaluable MS. is about to be restored externally to its pristine state of splendor, 'gihrinad miδ golde ⁊ miδ gimmum: æc miδ sulfre ofer gylded.'

Believe me, dear Sir,
Yours very faithfully,
Rev. R. M. White. F. Madden.

labours, we have his own authority for recognising the co-operation of the two antiquaries above mentioned[13]. The library of Sir R. Cotton, through the liberal spirit of its owner, was from the first the frequent and cherished resort[14] of the Saxon scholar; nor was it less accessible when, having passed by will into the hands of his son and grandson who inherited his antiquarian tendencies, it received valuable augmentations by gifts and purchases[15]. The early fruits of Sir H. Spelman's studies were not appreciated as they deserved, for we find that, when the first part of his Archæological Glossary was completed, the offer of the MS. at the merely nominal estimate of five pounds, which he himself fixed as an equivalent for his labours, met with no response; and when produced at last in 1626, at his own expense, it remained unsold, till, as his biographer informs

V. also Letter, No. LVIII. In No. CIII, written 15 May, 1697, to H. us, 'two booksellers in 1637 took it off his hands[16].' But his resources were abundant, and his suggestions and contributions towards the formation of a Monasticon Anglicanum, his edition of the first volume of Councils and Synods, as well as his treatises on the Original of Feuds, on Ancient Charters, and on other subjects of national interest, evince, if not a complete knowledge of the Saxon tongue, at least the industry and discernment with which his favourite studies were conducted. Within a short period before his death we find him taking steps to found a lecture at Cambridge, for the 'study of Saxon learning and the Old Church History and Creed of England.' The appointment is said not to have been ratified by the University, and the salary of Whelock and Somner, the successive and only occupants of the chair, was paid, probably, by the family of their venerable patron after his decease[17].

[16] The first part of the Glossary ended with the letter L. After the restoration of Charles II. the MS. copy of the rest of the Glossary, then in the possession of Charles Spelman, Sir Henry's grandson, was entrusted, at Archbishop Sheldon's solicitation, to Sir W. Dugdale for revision. It was published in 1664, and a suspicion was afterwards entertained that Dugdale had made insertions of his own, but apparently without foundation. The MS. ending with the word Riota, in Sir Henry Spelman's handwriting, and now in the Bodleian Library, corresponds with the printed book; and in a letter to C. Spelman, which had been seen by Gibson, Dugdale notices only having marked the copy for the press, and introduced loose papers left by the author without directions for the proper place of their insertion. The genuineness of the work may therefore be reasonably inferred, at least as far as the word Riota, the rest having been lost before the MS. was placed in the Bodleian. To the second volume of the Councils, which was published in 1664, Dugdale was the chief contributor. In a letter to C. Spelman he affirms that 'out of 200 sheets in the book, not above 57 were of his grandfather's collecting.' It appears also from the Catalogue of contents, where Dugdale's additions are marked with an asterisk, that out of 294 entries 192 were contributed by him, and 102 by Sir H. Spelman.

[17] For an account of the proposed endowment of this lecture, see Kemble's Letter in Michel's Bibliothèque Anglo-Saxonne, pp. 9, 10.

The names of Sir John Spelman, Selden, Meric Casaubon, and the two Spelman Professors, will recall the services done to Anglo-Saxon literature at a period when the political struggles of the nation absorbed its interest, and directed its wealth into channels unfavourable for learned research. Yet this was a period when light was now for the first time thrown on some points of faith and doctrine as held by our Saxon forefathers. In Spelman's Psalter[18], at the end of each Psalm are added, from the original manuscript, Latin Prayers, in which there is an absence of all appeal to the intercessory influence of the Virgin and of Saints, and also of any invocation of the material cross on which our Lord suffered. The Saxon homilies, from which Whelock has inserted various extracts in his edition of Beda[19], serve moreover to shew a remarkable freedom from errors into

S., to the end of the year 1070, and continued in Latin to the appointment of St. Anselm to the primacy of Canterbury in 1093. In 1644 Whelock also published a new edition of Lambarde's Archæonomia, with the Canons of King Edgar and of Ælfric, the laws called Edward the Confessor's, and those of William I. and Henry I. which the Roman Catholic Church has fallen. At this period also important additions were made to the facilities for the study of the language. The composition of Glossaries and Grammars had not escaped the attention of Joscelyn[20] and Laurence Nowell; their MS. collections, still extant in the Bodleian and Cottonian Libraries, evince their desire to remove difficulties from the path of the student. The exertions made by Nowell for this purpose, as well as his designs for an improved topography of the three kingdoms, and the aid with which he furthered the studies of others, particularly of the editor of the Archæonomia[21], have secured

Titus A. xv. and Titus A. xvi. contain two parts of a Glossary thus described in Wanley's Catal. p. 239: Titus A. xv. '*Codex chartaceus in Quarto per Joannem Josselinum et Johannem Parkerum D. Titus A. xvi. Codex chartaceus in Quarto qui est superioris Cod. pars altera; continens voces Saxonicas a littera M. ad litt. Z. inclusive.'

[21] V. Bodl. MS. Seld. supra, 63. 'Dictionarium Saxonico-Anglicum Laurentii Noelli, et ab Auctore Guil. Lambardo dono datum.' In a Latin letter written to Sir Wm. Cecil, afterwards Lord Burghley, dated 1563, L. Nowell expresses his hope of constructing new geographical maps of England if favoured by the Secretary's patronage. He writes, 'Video te, vir honoratissime, cum cæteris omnibus honestarum artium monumentis, tum præcipue Geographicis tabellis mirum in modum delectari... Animadverti porrò, eos qui huc usque Angliæ describendæ provinciam susceperunt, tibi usque quaque non satisfeciſse .... Spero profecto me (si modo tua in hac re mihi affulserit benevolentia) regionem nostram non modo simul universam sed et partes ejus omnes, et singulas provincias ita depicturum, ut posthac non erit opus in hoc negotium plus aut laboris aut sumptus conferre,' &c. him a high rank among the earliest Saxonists. Preparations for Glossaries, as we learn from the correspondence of Sir H. Spelman, Sir W. Boswell, and Dugdale, were also made by L'Isle, Sir Symonds D'Ewes [22], and others.

Sir H. Ellis in a note on this letter observes, 'The Cottonian MS. Domitian XVIII. fol. 97—123, contains a series of maps of the three kingdoms, drawn by Nowell with peculiar neatness, but upon too small a scale for serviceable use. England is depicted in thirteen maps; Scotland and Ireland in three each. In most of the English counties the names of places are expressed in Saxon characters: the longitudes and latitudes marked on the sides of the maps.'

[22] Sir Wm. Boswell, writing from the Hague in 1636 to Sir S. D'Ewes, mentions a transcript of 'a Saxon vocabulary, collected,' he adds, 'out of the four Evangelists, and one or two other small things, printed in that tongue, but farr short of a Dictionarie with (our honorable friend) Sir Thomas Cotton, made by Joscelinis (Secretarie sometime to Mathewe Parker, Archbishop of Canterbury, and compiler of Antiquitates Ecclesiæ Britannicæ), and one of another Dictionarie, which I did think Mr. L'Isle of the Isle of Ely (whom I think you know to be extraordinarily skilfull in that language) would have printed long since, of his own gathering.' Letters, No. LIII. In Letter LV, dated Barbacan, 28 Sep. 1638, Sir H. Spelman tells Whelock that 'his sonne, after the Psalter finished, should put forth the Grammar' which Sir H. had by him. He adds, 'for the Dictionary, Mr. de Laet of Leiden in the Low Countries is very busy about one,' but 'I am not willing that it should be done by a stranger, and we here (to whome it more particularly belongeth) be pretermitted. I have therefore written to him, that we have here in England some Dictionaries MS. already of very good use, done by skilful men in that language, and many other Collections by other men, all which I endevour to get drawn into one Body; and that the worke may be more compleat, have desired his conjectanea and association in the business.' The intention of printing this Dictionary was given up, as Sir H. Ellis informs us, De Laet resigning the task to Sir S. D'Ewes. Mr., afterwards Sir Wm., Dugdale, in a letter (No. LXVIII) to Sir S. D'Ewes dated 2 Jan. 1649, after noticing the errors of the Norman transcribers in the compilation of Domesday Book, writes, 'I hope now that you have the advantage of that honest man Mr. Sumner his helpe, you will speede the impression of your Saxon Lexicon and the Laws. Those noe doubt will goe of much better, though the times be bad, than Beda, which you know was printed in the heat of the Warr.'

The reprints of the treatises by Camden and Verstegan [23] indicate a popular current setting in towards Anglo-Saxon studies, although no improved effort had hitherto been made available for its direction. The Glossary of Spelman, consisting of commentaries rather than of precise definition of words, is better adapted for the historian of the constitution and the legal archæologist, than the learner who seeks elementary instruction. No other Glossaries of any extent and comprehensiveness then existed, and little aid could be derived from those found at the end of the Anglo-Saxon laws, or from the collection of Old German words which Meric Casaubon took from the Epistles of Lipsius, and appended to his treatise on the Saxon tongue, with the notes and illustrations of Somner [24]. The want of a lexicographer would not be less regretted, when Francis Whyte in his treatise on the 'Sacred Law of the Land [25],' while lamenting the undeserved neglect of the 'Saxon English tongue,' [23] Camden's 'Remaines' were reprinted at London in 1629, 1636, 1657, and often afterwards. The first edition of Verstegan's Treatise has been already noticed; the second was printed at London in 1628; a third also at London in 1634; a fourth in 8vo in 1653.

[24] Meric Casaubon, son of Isaac Casaubon, was born at Geneva about 1599, and having come with his father into England in 1610, afterwards received his education at Christ Church College in Oxford, where he took the degree of M. A. in 1621, and gained the reputation of extensive learning. Among many other works he published the following on the Saxon language, which he sought to connect very closely with Greek roots. An index of the words so treated is given at the end of the book. 'Merici Casauboni Is. F. De Quatuor Linguis Commentationis, Pars prior: Quæ, De Lingua Hebraica: et, De Lingua Saxonica. Londini. Typis J. Flesher, A. D. 1650.' The Appendix from Lipsius consists of 72 pages, and is entitled, 'Guilielmi Somneri, Cantuariensis, ad verba vetera Germanica, a V. Cl. Justo Lipsio, Epist. Cent. III. ad Belgas, Epist. XLIV collecta; Notæ.'

vindicated 'its fulnesse, goodnesse, and worth,' its independence on foreign aid for the general purposes of society, and its fitness especially for the service of the theologian. The student had therefore reason to hail with peculiar interest the fruit of Somner's labours, when in 1659, nearly a century after the appearance of Ælfric's Homily, he produced the first Saxon Dictionary, accompanied with a Latin and English translation, and the Latin and Saxon Grammar and Glossary of Ælfric[26].

Among the leading antiquaries at this time was a scholar, who, though a German by birth, had long become domiciled in England, and acquired there his taste for the study of the Northern tongues, which he afterwards pursued with the diligence characteristic of his countrymen[27]. Distinguished [27] Francis Junius, who was born at Heidelberg in 1589, passed his early youth in Holland, his father having been called in 1592 to fill the post of Divinity Professor at Leyden. About the year 1609 Junius settled in France, and in 1620 first came over to England. In the next year, on the recommendation of Andrewes, Bishop of Winchester, and Laud, then Bishop of St. David's, he was taken as librarian into the family of Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel and Surrey. After a residence of thirty years in England he returned to Germany, prosecuting without intermission his study of the Northern languages. In 1674 he returned to England to examine Anglo-Saxon MSS. in the Cottonian library, and, having passed two years in Oxford, retired to the house of his nephew Isaac Vossius, Canon of Windsor, where he died in the 89th year of his age, and was buried in the Collegiate Chapel of St. George. A monument with the following inscription was erected by the University of Oxford to his memory:—M. S. Francisco Junio Francisci Junii Biturigis Filio, Nobilitate Generis, Integritate Morum, Et Omnigena Doctrina Conspicuo Viro; Nato Heidelbergiæ Anno Salutis MDLXXXIX Qui Per Omnem Ætatem Sine Querela Aut Injuria Cujusquam Musis Tantum Et Sibi Vacavit. Universitas Oxoniensis, Cui Scripta Et Monumenta Laboris Sui Moriens Pene Nonagenarius Commisit, In Grati Animi Significationem Lubens Meritoque Titulum Posuit. Anno MDCLXXVIII. The truth of the above character is attested by Grævius in his life of Junius, and by his friend Janus Vlitius in the following as the first to make known the earliest of our native Christian poets[28], Francis Junius contributed to raise the estimate already formed of Anglo-Saxon genius; and, as the editor of the earliest monument of Germanic literature[29], verses, added beneath the portrait of Junius engraved by M. Burghers from the original by Vandyck in the Bodleian Library:

Qui priscas patriæ linguas, linguisque decorem
Reddidit, ingenuo hoc Junius ore fuit.
Æthereas tranquilli animi sed pingere dotes
Non potuit, quamvis nobilis arte, manus.

Junius himself unostentatiously records his difficulties as a Glossarist in the preface to the Mœso-Gothic Glossary, where he also introduces the graphic epigram of Joseph Scaliger:

Si quem dura manet sententia Judicis, olim
Damnatum ærumnis suppliciisque caput:
Hunc neque fabrili lassent ergastula massâ,
Nec rigidas vexent fossa metalla manus.
Lexica contexat. Nam cætera quid moror? omnes
Pœnarum facies hic labor unus habet.

[28] The original MS. of Cædmon's Paraphrase, now in the Bodleian Library (Jun. xi.), formerly belonged to Archbishop Usher, and was lent to Somner for his use in compiling his A. S. Lexicon. The MS. was afterwards given to Junius by the Archbishop, and published at Amsterdam together with three A. S. prayers from the Cott. MS. Julius A. 11. The title is as follows: Cædmonis Monachi Paraphrasis poetica Genesios ac præcipuarum Sacræ Paginæ Historiarum, abhinc annis M.LXX. Anglo-Saxonice conscripta, et nunc primum edita a Francisco Junio, F. F. Amstelodami 1655.

[29] The first edition of the Codex Argenteus was published by Junius, with the aid of a transcript made by Derrer. The transcript, which together with the Codex was taken to Upsala by the Count de la Gardie, perished in the fire which in 1702 destroyed, with other valuable property in that city, the house and library of Olaus Rudbeck. The following is the title of Junius's edition: 'Quatuor D. N. Jesu Christi Euangeliorum Versiones perantiquæ duæ, Gothica scil. et Anglo-Saxonica: Quarum illam ex celeberrimo Codice Argenteo nunc primum depromsit Franciscus Junius F. F. he opened, not only to the philologist, but also to the biblical scholar, a source of investigation hitherto unattainable. A hardy constitution, cheerful temper, and methodical arrangement of leisure and study, peculiarly fitted him for the arduous task of the Glossarist, and enabled him to avail himself of every opportunity of research into many dialects of the Gothic stock of languages, both in their ancient and then existing forms. The evidence and value of his labours are established, not only in his own published works, and his critical notices on the productions of others, but also in his collection of original MSS., careful transcripts, and voluminous Glossaries[30], in the composition of which he passed many years of an unusually protracted life. The treasures thus amassed by one who knew their importance were not destined for dispersion. His attachment to a spot which had been the frequent scene of his studies, and in which he had mixed with learned friends and associates, led him to fix on the Bodleian Library as the final depository of his literary collections. The bequest which enriched our academical archives with some noble monuments of our land's language, as well as with ample materials for the elucidation of its different stages and kindred tongues, serves to justify the fame of Junius, and the grateful regard in which his memory is held in Oxford.

Hitherto the sister University had supplied the field of Saxon learning with its principal labourers. But, owing probably at first to the example and personal influence of Junius, and after his death to the interest which the acquisition of his library had excited, Oxford towards the close of the seventeenth century began to present a busy scene of Saxon study. Already had Dr. Marshall, while in retirement in Holland, become known as the editor of the Anglo-Saxon Gospels, which are printed in parallel columns with the Mœso-Gothic version published by Junius[31], and as the author of valluable notes with which both versions are accompanied. Having afterwards become Rector of Lincoln College, Marshall had the credit of promoting the labours of his fellow-collegian George Hickes. We are told by Wanley[32] that he also collated, apparently for the press, the transcript which Junius had made from the Cottonian MS. of Alfred's paraphrastic version of Orosius with another copy in the Lauderdale library; and Hickes[33] intimates that he had also undertaken, at the request of Bishop Fell, an Anglo-Saxon Grammar; but both these designs were interrupted by his death.

In 1678 appeared anonymously, under the care of some members of University College, a Latin translation of Sir John Spelman's Life of Alfred[34]. Among the extracts in the Appendix are added a brief Chronicle of the West-Saxon Kings, and also the narrative of the voyagers Ohthere and Wulfstan, which Alfred inserted in his version of the History of Orosius. An insight was thus obtained into the nautical terms in use among the Anglo-Saxons and the knowledge of Northern Europe to which they had at that time attained.

[34] This work was translated into Latin by Obadiah Walker, Master of University College (1676—1688), and published with the following

The necessity for an Anglo-Saxon Grammar now became the more urgent from the increase of students, and the prospect of further accessions to Northern literature. No result had issued from the preparations already noticed as made for that purpose by Sir H. Spelman and Dr. Marshall, and no reasonable hope could be entertained for the discovery of Joscelyn's MS. Grammar, after the unsuccessful search made by Dr. Hickes. It was left therefore to Hickes to reduce into system the structure and peculiarities of the Anglo-Saxon tongue, as it was understood in his day. In this work[35], which he composed in Latin and published in 1689, the elements of Mœso-Gothic Grammar are found in juxta-position

Oxonii E Theatro Sheldoniano. Anno Dom. MDCLXXVIII. The original MS. was afterwards published, with additions, by Thomas Hearne, at Oxford, MDCCIX. The narrative of Ohthere and Wulfstan had been translated into English as early as 1598, and introduced by Richard Hakluyt into his 'Voyages and Discoveries of the English Nation, made by sea and overland.' Lond. 1598. v. Wanley Catal. p. 85.

[35] It bears two title-pages, the first being 'Institutiones Grammaticæ Anglo-Saxonicæ et Mœso-Gothicæ. Auctore Georgio Hickesio Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ Presbytero. Oxoniæ. E Theatro Sheldoniano 1689. Typis Junianis.' The second title-page gives a more enlarged statement of the contents: 'Institutiones—Presbytero. Grammaticæ Islandicæ Runolphi Jonæ, Catalogus Librorum Septentrionalium. with those of Anglo-Saxon; but, though the former is of high utility to the philologist, yet the differences which exist in the structure of two languages belonging to separate divisions of the same branch will scarcely justify such an arrangement, at least if we bear in view the benefit of the student. The attempt however, if not successful, evinced courage and industry in an undertaking in which the author had no coadjutor, guide, or precedent.

The Sheldon press at Oxford was now employed by some zealous members of Queen's College. Of these, Nicolson and Gibson had been associated in studies of which, when raised afterwards to the Episcopal bench, they became earnest and judicious patrons. The former had been employed by Bishop Fell in transcribing for the press the Northern Glossaries left in MS. by Junius[36], and was actively engaged in preparing, with the same object, the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, then only known by the defective edition of Whelock, when the duties of the Archdeaconry of Carlisle occasioned his removal from Oxford. The Saxonists at Queen's College, who seem to have been less desirous of the reproduction of former works than of the publication of MSS. hitherto inedited, entrusted to Gibson the care of the Chronicle after Nicolson had, through want of leisure, abandoned it. The Cottonian and Bodleian Libraries furnished him with the chief sources of the work, which appeared in 1692[37], accompanied with a [37] The principal MSS. used by Gibson were Bodl. Laud. E. 80. and Cott. Domit. A. viii. The Laudian MS. is mentioned by Wanley as ending with the year 1144, but this seems a mistake for 1154, with which year Gibson's edition ends, the last events mentioned being the death of Stephen, and the accession of Henry II. These entries correspond precisely both in the date and the narrative with the original MS., which Gibson professes to have followed from the year 1070 to the end. Lappenberg states of this MS. that it was written in the abbey of Peter-close Latin translation, and illustrated with historical and etymological notices of interest and value. After an interval of six years we find Edward Thwaites conducting a class of fifteen Saxon scholars at Queen's College, and hastening for their advantage the publication of a Vocabulary on which Benson had been for some time engaged. The Vocabulary did not eventually appear till the year 1701[28], but the delay tended to increase its usefulness, through the augmentations which it received from the MSS. of Junius and the additions borough, originally brought down to the year 1122, and continued with many Normanisms in language and orthography to 1154. The Cotton. MS. is greatly abridged and Normanized, though containing accounts wanting in some other copies. Gibson tells us in his Preface that this MS. had been collated by Junius with Whelock's edition, with a view, as he considers, for publication. Another MS. used by Gibson, which he distinguishes by the title Cant., and mentions as having been given by Archbishop Laud to the Bodleian, seems to be identical with the Laudian MS. G. 36. It ends with the year 977, and is considered by Wanley as a transcript of the Cotton MS. Tiber. A. vi. Gibson's edition of the A. S. Chron. has two title-pages; the first and shorter is, 'Chronicon Saxonicum. Ex. MSS. Codicibus Nunc Primum Integrum Edidit Ac Latinum fecit Edmundus Gibson A. B. è Collegio Reginæ. The second title-page bears a fuller statement of contents: 'Chronicon Saxonicum, Seu Annales Rerum In Anglia Præcipue Gestarum, A Christo nato ad Annum usque MCLIV. deducti, ac jam demum Latinitate donati. of the editor. In the mean time Thwaites did not relax in his labours, contributing in 1698 the aid of his pen and counsel to Christopher Rawlinson, the editor of Alfred's version of Boethius[39] on the Consolation of Philosophy, and printing in the following year Ælfric's abridgment of the Pentateuch, the Book of Joshua, and that of Judges, together with the Book of Job, a poetical fragment of Judith, and the supposititious Gospel of Nicodemus[40]. Otho A. vi, which Wanley considered to have been written during or very soon after the reign of Alfred. It was destroyed in the fire at Ashburnham House, Oct. 23, 1731. From the transcript (Jun. 12) Christopher Rawlinson, Gentleman Commoner of Queen's College, published the volume above mentioned at his own expense, with the addition of a Prayer in A. volumes two important additions were made to the few Anglo-Saxon works which had hitherto appeared in print.

The commencement of the eighteenth century is memorable in the annals of Anglo-Saxon learning by the publication of the Thesaurus of Northern Literature [41]. This elaborate work of Dr. Hickes, the result of many years of anxious toil, will be most truly appreciated if we bear in mind the [41] The Thesaurus was published in 1705 with the following general title, and a dedication to George, Hereditary Prince of Denmark and Consort of Anne, Queen of England: 'Antiquæ Literaturæ Septentrionalis Libri Duo. Quorum Primus Georgii Hickesii S. T. P. Linguarum Vett. Septentrionalium Thesaurum Grammatico-Criticum et Archæologicum. Ejusdem de antiquæ Literaturæ Septentrionalis Utilitate Dissertationem Epistolarem. Et Andreæ Fountaine Equitis Aurati Numismata Saxonica et Dano-Saxonica complectitur. Alter continet Humfredi Wanleii Librorum Vett. Septentrionalium, qui in Angliæ Biblioth. extant, Catalogum Historico-Criticum; necnon multorum Vett. Codd. Septentrionalium alibi extantium notitiam, cum totius operis sex Indicibus. Oxoniæ, E Theatro Sheldoniano, An. Dom. MDCCV.' The first book consists of three parts, each with a separate title-page, bearing the date MDCCIII. The first part contains an A. S. and M. Gothic Grammar; the second, a Franco-Theotisc Grammar; the third, the Icelandic Grammar of Runolph Jonas, augmented by Hickes. This book is closed by an Epistolary Dissertation on the use of the Northern Languages, with the date MDCCIII, and a Treatise on Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Danish Coins, by Andrew Fountaine, Student of Christ Church, Oxford. The title-page of this Treatise is dated MDCCV. The second book consists of the Catalogue of Northern Books and MSS., drawn up by H. Wanley in English, and translated into Latin by E. Thwaites. When bound in three volumes, the first volume ends with the F.-Theotisc Grammar; the second, with the Treatise on Coins, and the third, with a List of Subscribers and Patrons of the Work. An abridgment of the Thesaurus was written in Latin by Wotton, and published in 1708, with notes chiefly written by Hickes, and a tract on Saxon Money by Thwaites. It was afterwards translated into English by Maurice Shelton, of Barningham Hall in Suffolk, and published in 1735. E. Thwaites in 1711 published from the Latin text of the Thesaurus a compendium of A. S. Grammar, with notices of the several dialects as determined by Hickes, and with the Runic and M. Gothic Alphabets, &c. v. Nichols's Liter. Anecd. ii. 110.

opportunities at the command of the author. Few original productions in the Gothic tongues had then been made known; the knowledge of comparative etymology was of the most limited kind; on the continent investigations into the origin and affinities of current languages were very rarely prosecuted, while in this country materials for a philological work of the kind could only be acquired at considerable expense, and by researches that needed no slight perseverance and physical exertion. Fortunate in the talent and diligence of Thwaites [42] and Wanley, the author of the Thesaurus, with the materials before him, had yet the difficult task of discrimination, selection, arrangement, and adaptation. While lamenting the absence of scholars who had preceded him in a successful prosecution of the same studies, he felt his own deficiencies and the frequent want of that friendly and impartial co-operation which stimulates labour, corrects the judgment, and improves the fruits which it assists in producing. When we consider the Thesaurus as formed under the peculiar difficulties here noticed, yet presenting a storehouse of valuable literary records, and a grammatical system in various dialects both of the Germanic and Scandinavian branches of the Gothic tongues, we may be inclined to wonder less that Hickes has erred, than that his errors are so few. If the light which his work has held out to the student has not always been cast in the right direction, yet it has served to quicken his energies, and in maintaining its position for more than a century, as a beacon amidst much prevailing obscurity, has been instrumental in saving the Northern languages from that wreck to which popular neglect and indifference might otherwise have consigned them.

[42] Hickes bears the following testimony to the aid afforded by Thwaites in preparing the Thesaurus for the press: '. . . ille (Thwaitesius) cum literarum Arctoarum scientia, quas cum Græcis et Latinis conjungere non dedignatus est, tum summo ingenio, et honestate vitæ mihi charus, et jucundus, schedas nostras tam imprimendas, quam impressas revisendi, et corrigendi, ut et typographos, chalcographosque quotidie dirigendi, instituendique, quinque annorum cura, et diligentia de codice nostro ita meruit, ut si illum mecum ejusdem auctorem, cujus adjutor maximus fuit, prædicarem, id tantum facerem, quod sine arrogantia sibi assumere, et jure suo quodammodo vendicare posset.' Thes. Præfat. iv. v.

The contribution to the Thesaurus by Wanley, consisting of a historical catalogue of Northern MSS., then known to be contained in England, preserves its interest and value at the present day. Acting on the instructions of Dr. Hickes[43], he has left on record not merely an enumeration of MSS., but critical notices of their contents, and a mass of varied information which cannot fail to improve the taste as well as to lessen the toil of the Saxon student. From a list of the promoters of the Thesaurus, given at the end of the last volume[44], if numerical evidence be here admissible, we may [43] In a letter to H. Wanley, dated A. D. 1699, Hickes, alluding to the Thesaurus, says, 'I pray you, when you are at Cambridge, to let inquirers know that my Book is advanced to the lv. sheet. That its prime cost will at least be a guiney in the lesser paper, that its title will be Linguarum veterum Septentrionalium Thesaurus Grammatico-Criticus et Archæologicus. and that you do not doubt but that it will answer the expectation of those learned men who have been pleased to encourage it. . . . I advise you to keep company with none but men of learning and reputation; . . . . . to behave yourself upon the place with candor, caution, and temperance; to avoid compotations; to go to bed in good time, and rise in good time; to let them see you are a man that observes houres and discipline; to make much of yourself; and want nothing that is fit for you: and dayly to pray to God, without whome nothing can be successefull and prosperous, to blesse you with health, to prosper your handywork. . . . In taking the Catalogue pray put the beginning and ending of every Tract and Homily, the first and last entire sentence, and the whole period, when they are not too long.' Letters of E. L. M. cxvm. In his Preface, p. iv, he thus writes of Wanley, 'In illo' (Catalogo Codd. Vett. Septent.) 'conficiendo Humphredi Wanley, divini ingenii hominis, et illustrandis antiquis literis nati, consilio, manu, opera usus sum.'

form some notion of the encouragement which Anglo-Saxon studies then received. In the list might possibly have been found the partial friend and the generous, if not learned, patron, strangers to the work, though willing to aid its author; but the distribution of the volumes, even in a limited degree, could scarcely fail to draw attention to the subject-matter beyond the sphere of the secluded student and antiquary. It is hence no unreasonable inference, that the Thesaurus tended to stimulate inquiry into the early annals of our country, as well as of its language, and subserved a better knowledge of the religious creed and civil institutions of our ancestors. The publication of the work, it is clear, was followed by more energetic exertions among Anglo-Saxon scholars, and although, as well after as shortly before its appearance, important works were projected and abandoned [45], yet to those which subsequently passed through the press a greater degree of usefulness was imparted by the more critical character which distinguished them.

Trelawney, Hough, Humphreys, Fowler, Nicolson, T. Smith; 152 of the clergy, including deans, archdeacons, parochial incumbents, and others; 174 of the laity, including 34 noblemen, and 140 baronets, knights, and country gentlemen. There are also the names of four ladies, viz. Rebecca Marchioness of Worcester, Lady Anna Mason, Catharine Bovey, and Susanna Hopton. The only foreigner whose name appears among the patrons is Christopher Leyoncrona, ambassador from Charles XII. King of Sweden. In addition to the above are given the names of 12 decanal and capitular bodies, the Society of the Middle Temple, London, 15 Colleges in the University of Oxford, 8 Colleges and 4 Halls in that of Cambridge, and St. Mary Winton College at Winchester.

Occasional recourse was now had to a practice which had been for some time lost sight of, but which is well calculated to render philological studies more popular and attractive. Former editors of Anglo-Saxon works since the year 1623 had either translated their authors into Latin, or had given the text unaccompanied with any translation. It must be allowed that the adoption of a classical language as the medium of translation may serve to awaken the notice of the learned, and to meet the demand which a sustained attention to the study of our mother-tongue would occasion both among foreign and native scholars. But the practice is open to defects impeding the progress of a national interest towards the study of the principles, the advancement, and the general history of the language. We should also fail to realize the application of one of the great charms and uses of philology, by losing all opportunities of any comparative view of the changes in feature and structure which are deve-

(9) 1715. English-Saxon Homilies by E. Elstob. Two attempts at publication were made, the first with the title, 'Elfrici Homiliæ. edit. El. Elstob. (fol. Oxon. 1715.') Of this attempt only 36 pages were printed. A second attempt was made under the title, 'The English-Saxon Homilies of Ælfric, Archbishop of Canterbury, who flourished in the latter end of the tenth century and the beginning of the eleventh. Being a course of Sermons collected out of the writings of the ancient Latin Fathers, containing the Doctrines &c. of the Church of England before the Norman Conquest, and shewing its purity from many of those Popish innovations and corruptions which were afterwards introduced into the Church. Now first printed and translated into the language of the present times by Elizabeth Elstob.' MSS. Lansd. 370–4. V. Preface to Ælfric's Homilies, ed. B. Thorpe. Pref. ix. and note 1. (10) Some years afterwards G. Ballard, a Clerk of Magdalen College, transcribed Orosius apparently for the press. The MS. is now in the library of the Soc. of Antiquaries, through the gift of Bishop Lyttelton, to whom it had been bequeathed. V. loped through its progressive stages. Nor could justice be rendered to the talents of our native writers, their powers of pleasing the imagination as poets, or their usefulness as historians or homilists, where their thoughts, or record of events and doctrines, are transmitted through a language between which and the Anglo-Saxon there exists so great a dissimilarity in genius, idiom, and structure. We may therefore better appreciate the judgment which led Archbishop Parker, Foxe, and L'Isle to use the vernacular tongue of their day for the purpose of translation; and if we regret the contrary as having been till recently the prevailing practice, we shall be less disposed to deny the credit of taste and discernment to the few who have formed the exception. Of these the first who claims our notice is William Elstob, a nephew and pupil of Dr. Hickes, who, when Fellow of University College, wrote a Latin version of the Sermon of Bishop Lupus [46], inserted in the Thesaurus. He afterwards contributed an English translation of the 'Hours of Prayer' of the Anglo-Saxon Church appended to a controversial work [47] published in 1705 by Dr.

[46] The Sermon and translation, accompanied with etymological and historical notes, and a Latin letter to Hickes, dated 1701, are printed in the Dissert. Epist. pp. 98–106, from the Junian transcript (Jun. MS. 102) taken from the Cotton. MS. Nero A. 1. xxiii. fol. 113, entitled, 'Sermo Lupi ad Anglos Quando Dani Maxime Persecuti Sunt Eos: Quod Fuit Anno Mlō xiv Ab Incarnatione Dn̄i Nr̄i Ihv Xp̄i.' The MS. in the library of C. C. College, Camb. (s. 18. xxxix. fol. 82) has, 'Sermo Lupi &c. Quod Fuit Anno Mlo. viii. ab Incarnatione &c.' The Hatton MS. (Jun. 99. xxiii. fol. 84. b.) has, 'Item Sermo &c. Quod Fuit In Dies Æthelredi Regis.' It is not ascertained over what see Lupus presided, but there are reasons given in Wanley's Catal. pp. 140–143, for identifying him with Wulfstan, Archbishop of York and Bishop of Worcester from 1002 to 1023.

Hickes. His sister, Elizabeth Elstob, published in 1709 the Homily on the Birth-day of St. Gregory with an English translation, and was the first to render in English the rudiments of the Anglo-Saxon tongue[48]. A compendium of Grammar[49] taken from the Thesaurus, and published anonymously at Oxford in 1711, is usually assigned to Edward Thwaites.

The 'Textus de Ecclesiâ Roffensi,' which is still preserved in the Library of the Dean and Chapter of Rochester, seems to have been first consulted by a valuable MS. of the 12th century, compiled under the direction of Bishop Earnulph, and containing not only many charters and documents connected with the city and see of Rochester, but also the only early record yet known of the Laws of the Kentish Kings Ethelbirht, Hlothhære and Eadric, and Wihtred. In 1723 Hearne edited the Chartulary of the Church of Worcester [54], which its sub-prior Hemming compiled by command of Wulstan the second Bishop of that name. Three years afterwards the same laborious antiquary published the fragment of the narrative of the death of Byrhtnoth, the heroic ealdorman of Northumbria, whose fall in a battle with the Danes under Olaf Tryggvason near Maldon in Essex, in the year 991, has furnished us with one of the most spirited poems [55] of our forefathers.

Wm. Lambarde, who in 1576 published in his Perambulation of Kent the Will of Byrthric and Ælfswythe, and an account of Repairs of Rochester Bridge. From this MS. also were published the Laws of Wihtræd by Spelman (Concil, Tom. i. p. 194); an account of Ordeal by E Browne in 1690, among the additional matter which appears in his edition of the 'Fasciculus Rerum Expetendarum, ac Fugiendarum[b];' and the Laws of Æthelbirht, and of Hlothhære and Eadric, as well as the Will of B. and Æl., with other extracts, by Hickes in his Diss. Epist. pp. 43, 51, 53, 69. The above-mentioned Laws were reprinted by Harris in his History of Kent, in 1719, pp. 401–410. Dr. Wilkins also made use of the T. R. in his edition of the A. S. laws, in collating it with the Cotton. MS. Jul. C. ii., which is apparently the transcript made by F. Tate in 1589. V. Wilkins's Pref. and Wanley's Catal. pp. 186, 273, 308. Sir F. Madden informs me 'that Hearne in his edition omits much of the matter printed by Lambarde, Spelman, and others, and abridges the Latin charters of late date, and that it is not true (although Tanner and the Harl. Catalogue so state it) that Hearne printed from the Harl. MS. 6523, as that MS. contains only the Anglo-Saxon laws from the Textus, and does not at all correspond with the description given by Hearne of the Dering transcript, from which his impression was made.'

For a long period no original work of any extent in Anglo-Saxon employed the care of our philologists, whose labours in the middle of the last, as had been the case in that of the preceding century, were given to the compilation of Dictionaries, which have had their share in fixing the standard of the English language, or in aiding the acquisition of the knowledge of its various stages. The 'Etymologicon Anglicanum' of Junius, a work of great erudition and research, after remaining long in manuscript, found at length an editor in Edward Lye, who, acting under the impulse of a spirit kindred with the tastes and zeal of the compiler, succeeded in bringing it through the press, augmented by the addition of an Anglo-Saxon Grammar and by such original matter as his own reading had enabled him to supply [56]. Opportunities were incidentally afforded for a philological comparison of the English language from the age of Alfred to that of Elizabeth in the historical sketch which Samuel Johnson prefixed to the first edition of his Dictionary [57]. Johnson has taken his extracts in illustration of the English language from the following authors bearing on the acquisition of the Anglo-Saxon tongue a Lexicon was at this time undertaken by Edward Lye, under difficulties which might have discouraged a less ardent Saxonist. He was not indeed unprepared for the struggle, for he had already found his countrymen, like aliens in their fatherland, toiling in the study of the language and laws of other nations to the neglect of their own early annals and institutions. Cheered by the timely patronage of Archbishop Secker, he prosecuted the work to its completion; but the first sheets were scarcely through the press, when sinking under the exertion of over-wrought energies he left at his death his MSS. to the care of Owen Manning, under whose responsibility the Lexicon was published in 1772[55], a Lexicon still held, notwithstanding some defects in critical knowledge, as valuable for a faithful adherence to the orthography of the examples and citations.

It is probable that the importance of this production, which is justly recognised by the antiquary of the present day, was appreciated by the countrymen of Alfred, while they learned in the records of calamities detailed by the historian a lesson of submission to the disastrous results of foreign invasion.

The publication of Orosius was followed by treatises [60] of varied extent, and notices in historical works, on subjects connected with the polity and language of our forefathers. Critical researches into the rich stores of MSS. hitherto unexamined were also commenced by a scholar, in the pages of

Near the close of the last century, the provision which had been made by Dr. Richard Rawlinson in 1755 for the endowment of an Anglo-Saxon lecture[62] in the University of Oxford took effect, by the appointment in 1795 of Charles Mayo, Fellow of St. John's, as the first professor. Independent of this endowment, but auxiliary to its object, a valuable library of Northern literature[63] was bequeathed by Richard Gough to the University in the year 1799, in trust for the professor's use. The restrictions accompanying the tenure of the office have their disadvantages, but are not such as to weaken the regard due from its holders to the expectations of that learned body, to whom they owe their position for fulfilling the wishes of their founder. Conybeare may be allowed to testify a zeal, not altogether unsuccessful, to that end.

The Inaugural Lecture[64] of Professor Ingram, published in 1807, contains a comprehensive and eloquent statement of the exertions to which our mother-tongue had been indebted for its encouragement, and of the claims which it asserts to the notice of European scholars. Led through a love of early folk-lore to acquire a familiar knowledge of most of the branches of our national antiquities, he passed a long, but not idle, interval in preparing for the press his edition of the Saxon Chronicle[65]. The sources which he consulted serve to secure a faithful record of annals considered to be unrivalled in value among the historical collections of Northern Europe.

The groundwork of the poem of Beowulf is possibly of a date anterior to the arrival of the ated in the terminal lectures delivered by Professor Conybeare between the years 1808 and 1813, evince the acuteness of a mind able to grapple with a subject all the difficulties of which have not yet been satisfactorily overcome. In his perspicuous detail of the laws of Anglo-Saxon verse the author critically discusses the nature of its rhythm and cadence, the properties of its alliterative metre, and that singular apposition of sentences, resembling the parallelisms of Hebrew poetry, which, though, as it would appear, systematically adopted, had yet escaped the notice of former writers. The examples produced to substantiate the original remarks of the Professor, as well as the supplemental notices of his talented relation and editor, contain extracts from the poems of Cædmon, and Beowulf, and from the 'Exeter Book,' the contents of which were now for the first time made more generally known to Northern scholars. The insight thus obtained into the metrical system of our forefathers imparts a Anglo-Saxons in this country, but the present form of the poem is not considered to be of a date earlier than the tenth century. A transcript of this poem, which is contained in the Cott. MS. Vitellius A. xv, was made by Thorkelin in 1786, and was ready with a Latin translation and Glossary for publication in 1807, when the whole was destroyed at the siege of Copenhagen. Prepared for the press a second time by Thorkelin it was published in 1815 with a Latin translation and Glossary. In 1820 Grundtvig published a Danish paraphrase of the poem with corrections, suggested by himself and Rask, of Thorkelin's text, the faultiness of which, through the circumstances above mentioned, was almost unavoidable. The corrections were found to agree very closely with the original MS. The Exeter Book is a MS. containing a miscellaneous collection of A.S. poetry, and still remains at Exeter with other MSS., being part of the collection presented by Bishop Leofric to the library of his Cathedral in the eleventh century. Some of the volumes are now in the Bodleian Library, and others in the library of C.C.C. Cambridge. The authorship of the poetry in the E. B., as well as of that in the 'Codex Vercellensis,' is attributed by Kemble to Cynewulf, abbot of Peterborough or Medamstede, who died in 1014. v. Pref. to Cod. greater interest to those national productions, in which the poet gave to the range of his thoughts a freedom and a boldness denied to the more servile movements of a mere translator.

During its recent and active revival Anglo-Saxon literature has become more justly appreciated, although such a result has not been attained without struggles remarkable for the occasion which called them forth, and the source of the encouragement which they elicited.

The labours of our earliest Saxon scholars, as well as of their successors, were not indeed uncheered by the patronage of those among their countrymen who through their attainments, inclination, and influence were best able to bestow it; but the preceding remarks may tend to shew at what distant intervals the patron's aid was given, how much was accomplished by unbefriended authors, and how many works were abandoned through the indifference with which the projects for their publication were received. Prospects scarcely less discouraging followed, while the cultivation of the study was passing into channels through which hitherto it had been but sparingly conducted. Till the commencement of the present century continental scholars had been rarely led into any extensive investigation of the Anglo-Saxon tongue, or the publication of its literary remains. The list of its chief promoters is almost exhausted by the names of Vulcanius, De Laet, Schilter, Wachter, Ihre, and Adelung [67]. But on the publica-

The principles of comparative etymology were developed at large in the second edition of the 'Deutsche Grammatik[69],' the publication of which, from the commencement in 1822, extended over a period of fifteen years. These principles were employed in readjusting the grounds on which etymological deductions had so long rested, and in substituting fresh elements and accessories constructive of a new standard of philological criticism[70].

The admission of the Anglo-Saxon language among the tests and proofs of a system so comprehensive, and so elaborately detailed, as that of Grimm, was calculated to attract the watchful notice of our own countrymen. works illustrative of our language and institutions. Among these the student gladly hailed the English translation of Rask's Anglo-Saxon Grammar, the circulation of which had been chiefly confined to Denmark; the valuable compilation in the 'Analecta Anglo-Saxonica;' and the critical edition of the poem of Beowulf, put forth in 1835 and 1837, and marked with the historical and philological research at the command of its learned and zealous editor.

While these works were passing through the press, not unaided by the patronage of the public, it was felt by those most conversant with the literary claims of the Anglo-Saxons that they could not render justice to such claims, while, amidst the responsibilities of editorial labour, they depended solely for encouragement on the capricious tenure of popular favour. So far back as the year 1830 patriotic appeals on behalf of our early vernacular literature were addressed to learned and influential Institutions, and to those existing Societies[73]

The field of Anglo-Saxon philology now found its ablest labourers in this country associated in friendly and honourable rivalry with the enlightened scholars of Denmark and Germany. Entire works hitherto but imperfectly edited, or known only through extracts and incidental notices, were made accessible to the scholar through the careful labours of our most experienced Saxonists. Under such auspices the poetic element in our national genius, as exhibited in productions of a narrative, devotional, or traditional character, received its due share of critical attention. No less diligence and judgment have been bestowed on the publication of charters and other documents, which throw light on popular manners and customs, and on the working of the social machine through its varied conditions of public and domestic life. Nor have subjects of higher import and practical tendency been forgotten. The Legislation of the Witena-gemôt and the Homiletic teaching of the Anglo-Saxon Church have been presented to us through two of the most valuable works of the Saxon press, which testify in correctness of text the intelligence and care with which they have been edited. The theologian, it is true, will discover errors and inconsistencies in the Homilies of Ælfric, but he will admit them also as a depository in which important

A Philological Society, including some of our principal A.S. scholars, has for some time held meetings in London, and printed many valuable papers on the English language. It appears also from a recent communication to the Athenæum that a Philological Society was formed at Cambridge so long ago as 1830, and that some of the speculations of its members were printed in the Philological Museum for 1832, 1833. v. truths both of a moral and doctrinal kind have been preserved. At the same time the statesman will not fail to recognise in the 'Ancient Laws and Institutes of England' the rude germ of much of her constitutional polity, and the source from which, 'as from springs of wholsome waters, the streames of her later laws have spread [75].'

The revival of Anglo-Saxon learning has thus tended materially to increase the facilities for its cultivation, as well as its value and usefulness. Our vernacular literature has been enriched by accurate editions of its earliest productions, and our mother-tongue raised to a position in which it fulfils an important part in elucidating the history and affinities of European languages [76].

other points of interest many peculiarities of orthography, phraseology, and construction, will tend, it is hoped, to the illustration of the English language in one of its most remarkable stages and dialects. The original MS., consisting of a single folio volume, is preserved among the Junian collection in the Bodleian Library[78]. An entry on the second fly-leaf of the volume shews that it was purchased in 1659[79] by Janus Ulitius[80], a friend of Junius, and a scholar of varied [79] Incorrectly stated by Wanley as 1652, and by Guest as 1656.

[80] Janus Ulitius or Vlitius (Van Vliet) was born, probably at the Hague, in 1610. He was intimate with most of the distinguished scholars of his time. When on a visit in England in 1641, where he amused himself with others in the pleasures of the chace, he formed the project of editing some of the Latin poets who have written on hunting, and on his return into Holland published, with commentaries, at the Elzevir press in 1645, his 'Venatio Novantiqua,' 12mo, which contains the poems of Gratius Faliscus, Calpurnius, and Nemesianus. A reprint appeared in 1653, under the title 'Auctores rei venaticæ antiqui,' with a new dedication and an appendix called 'Secundæ Curæ.' In 1728 appeared an edition of the 'Poetæ Latini Rei venaticæ Scriptores et Bucolici Antiqui,' published by Burman at Leyden, with the notes of Ulitius and others. Ulitius was the author of several other works, of which we need only notice the poetical Epistle dedicatory to the Count de la Gardie, prefixed to the Mœso-Gothic Glossary of Junius. Bishop Morley addressed to him two Latin letters[c], dated from Breda, 1659, and published in 1683 in London. They were translated into English, and published anonymously in 1707[d]. Ulitius was appointed by Frederick Henry Prince of Orange to the office of 'Greffier' or Registrar at Breda, and has left four volumes filled with official proceedings. He died at Breda in 1666, in the 57th year of his age. The following taste and erudition. It is possible that the volume formerly belonged to some religious fraternity in England, and during the plunder of monasteries at the period of the Reformation found its way abroad with other literary treasures of a similar kind, of which a large traffic was then made on the sordid calculation of bulk and measure[81]. Thus happily escaping some ignoble fate, it would have passed in the interval successively through the hands of owners who knew its value into the library of the Dutch philologist at Breda. But the entry above noticed rather suggests the probability, that Vliet became the owner through the necessities of one of those English exiles, who had sought in Breda a refuge from the political excitement then prevailing in this country. On the death of Vliet in 1666 his library was sold by auction at anecdote will prove the esteem in which Ulitius was held by his learned contemporaries, as well as the little value they placed on the study of their own language. Nicolas Heinsius having in the course of his correspondence with him addressed one of his letters 'Vlitio antiquitatis utriusque, tam barbaræ quam eruditæ, peritissimo,' received a reply with the following superscription, 'Heinsio viro uti latinæ græcæque antiquitatis indagatori studiosissimo, ita patrii avitique sermonis incurioso.' the Hague, as appears by a sale-catalogue bound up with other catalogues, and preserved in the Museum of the Bodleian[82]. Having failed to meet with any allusion to the MS. either in the controversial letter of Bishop Morley or in the dedicatory verses prefixed to the Mœso-Gothic Glossary, the editor had recourse to the sale-catalogue just noticed, and found under the head of 'Libri miscellanei in folio' the following entry in old Dutch: '107. Een oudt Sweeds of Gottisch in Parquement geschreven Boeck oder de Evangelium.[83]' As there is a corresponding entry of the number '107' on the first fly-leaf of the MS., there can be no difficulty in identifying the 'old Gothic book' with the Homilies of Ormin. We may conjecture that Junius, who was residing in the Netherlands at the time of his friend's death, attended the sale at the Hague, and then became the purchaser of a volume which forms one of the most valuable of his donations to the Bodleian.

It is probable that the earliest printed notice of the Ormulum in this country occurs in the Catalogue of Northern Books appended by Hickes to the first edition of his Anglo-Saxon Grammar, in which it is described as a Book of Semi-Saxon Homilies on the first chapter of the Gospel of Saint Luke, in a dialect verging towards the Old English or rather the Scotch tongue[84]. the Junian MSS. describes it as a Harmony of Gospel History, with Latin Texts, and an Old English or Scotch Commentary. Hickes afterwards made use of the MS. for his Thesaurus, for the purpose of illustrating the dialect, which he calls in one place Dano-Norman-Saxon, and in others Norman-Saxon, and Anglo-Norman. Wanley, keeping in view the plan laid down for him by Hickes for his guidance in collecting information, evidently took some pains to examine the MS. more closely than had hitherto been done. After describing it as a Book of Norman-Saxon Homilies or Paraphrastic Lectures on the Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles, he first gives the commencement and chief part of the Dedication. He then proceeds to add a brief notice relating to the Texts, with an extract from the Preface and the beginning of each Homily, according to the present fragmentary state of the MS., noting each hiatus as it occurs[85]. Neither Hickes nor Wanley, however, appears to have recognised the metrical form of the work, as all mention of it is omitted in the chapters of the Thesaurus which treat of the poetry of the different dialects, and the extracts quoted by them are throughout printed as prose. With the exception of a quotation and some philological remarks, by which we find that Junius in preparing, and Lye in editing, the Etymologicon Anglicanum[86] had consulted the pages of the Ormulum, no further attention was drawn to it till it received the critical notice of Tyrwhitt in his Essay on the Language of Chaucer. To this scholar we owe the discovery of its metrical properties, but he failed to comprehend the purport of certain peculiarities in its orthography[87]. Baber, in the account of 'Saxon and English Versions of the Scriptures,' prefixed to his edition of Wicliffe's New Testament, marks the Ormulum as 'one of the earliest of those paraphrases of the Bible which were shackled with poetry, and frequently violated Scripture facts[88].' The editor of the 'Illustrations of Anglo-Saxon Poetry,' in his Essay on the 'later English Alliterative Metres,' allows the Homilies of Ormin to be 'interesting, as exhibiting a species of blank verse destitute alike of rime and alliteration,' but, like Tyrwhitt, he has overlooked the value of the author's orthographical accuracy[89].

The fullest amount of extracts which have been made public since the time of Hickes appears in the selections in the 'Analecta Anglo-Saxonica,' and in the 'History of English Rhythms[90].' Through these extracts the style, the orthography, and the metre of the Ormulum have been rendered familiar to the student, with the advantage of a correctness of text which both Hickes and Wanley failed to give.

the MS. to the present time, we may obtain a general knowledge of its contents, under such modifications as the perusal of the volume has since supplied. It may hence be described as a series of Homilies[92], in an imperfect state, composed in metre without alliteration, and, except in very few cases, also without rhyme[93]; the subject of the Homilies being supplied by those portions of the New Testament which were read in the daily service of the Church.

Of the personal history of the author no record remains beyond the bare statement contained in the Dedication[94], in which he informs us that his baptismal name was Ormin, and that he was a Canon Regular of the Order of Saint Augustine. He adds, that at the request of his brother Walter, also an Augustinian Canon, he had composed these Homilies in English for the spiritual improvement of his countrymen. His plan is, first to give a paraphrastic version of the Gospel of the day, adapting the matter to the rules of his verse, with such verbal additions as were required for that purpose. He then adds an exposition of the subject in its that 'highly valuable as it (the Ormulum) is in a philological point of view, yet, never proceeding probably beyond the original copy of the author, it could have been of little or no use in religious teaching.'

[92] The term 'Homilies' is here used to designate these compositions of Ormin, from the author having himself employed it in the 201st text, 'De agno paschali sequitur ducentesima prima Omelya.'

[94] Dedic. ll. 7—10, and 123, 124. The abridged name of Orm was probably taken occasionally, as was the case in A. S. times, when such abbreviated names or nicnames were not uncommon, as instanced in Seba for Saebeorht, Beda's E. H. ii. 5. Totta for Torhthelm (Bp. of Leicester 732—764), v. Cod. doctrinal and practical bearings, in the treatment of which he borrows copiously from the writings of St. Augustine and Ælfric, and occasionally from those of Beda[95]. Some idea may be formed of the extent of Ormin's labours when we consider that out of the entire series of Homilies, provided for nearly the whole of the yearly service, nothing is left beyond the text of the thirty-second. Whether the loss of the remainder has been occasioned by negligence, or wanton mischief, or by the jealousy of his contemporaries[96], or whether further portions may yet lie undiscovered in some English or foreign library, is still matter of conjecture. Did we possess more of the work, especially had we the concluding portions of it, we might possibly have obtained some clue to its date, and the locality in which it was written[97].

[95] In his quotations Ormin cites the Scriptures as the 'Goddspell-boc,' 'soþ boc,' 'þe boc,' and 'þe Latin boc,' and cites also other authorities as 'þe boc,' 'Latin boc;' but he never names his authors, in one instance only using the term 'sume wise menn' (l. 11214), where his authority is evidently St. Augustine. Extracts in the notes will shew in some degree the extent to which Ormin was indebted to the Fathers of the Church for his matter, which, though so far not original, he at least did service by rendering in the familiar speech of his day.

[97] In the 'Liber Vitæ' of the Church of Durham, published by the Surtees Society in 1841, among other benefactors of the 13th century, at p. 48 appear the names of Orm and Walter consecutively. The fact may present no more than a remarkable coincidence, but the notice of it, when we know so little of the brothers, may not be thought irrelevant at least by those who claim for the Ormulum a Northumbrian origin. It should be added that the late Mr. Garnett expressed to the editor his opinion, after examining the original MS. in the B. M., that the entry of the names of Orm and Walter, as well as of others both before and after them, was in the handwriting of the monk who had the custody of the book, and that it was not earlier than A. D. 1300.

In the absence of all direct information on these points, we are thrown upon such evidence, in our attempt to ascertain them, as the present state of the MS. will supply.

If we consider alone the character of the hand-writing, the ink, and the material used by the scribe, we find reasons for placing the date of the MS. early in the thirteenth century, while the grammatical forms and structure of the language rather indicate a later period. We meet with neglect of gender and number, a frequent use of prepositions substituted for the casal endings of nouns, and the rejection of the prefix ȝe in all those parts of speech which receive it in pure Anglo-Saxon; the only instance of its retention being found in the participle ȝehatenn, which is occasionally used as well as hatenn. In a few cases i is substituted for this prefix, as in imæne, istanedd, iwhille, iwiss. The aspirate, in words where it is taken as an initial or after a prefix in Anglo-Saxon, is either transposed with the letter which in Anglo-Saxon would follow it, or is omitted altogether. There is also for the most part a simplicity in grammatical forms and in the construction of sentences. All these may fairly be considered as phenomena indicating a less artificial, and therefore more advanced, stage of the language [98]. But at

The article þe, though not occurring invariably, is generally used for the same time we must not forget to take into account the object of the work. Ormin's addresses were directed to the low-born as well as the higher classes of the laity, to the 'theow' as well as his lord. Such would more readily abandon the strict rules of grammar than their superiors, and thereby anticipate to a certain extent a later phraseology and structure. Any teaching, consequently, to be effectual with an unlearned hearer, would require to be clothed in such a garb as he could recognise, and in a style within his comprehension.

If these points could not be attained by observing the forms and structure still surviving in the language of his day, Ormin, less careful of grammatical accuracy than of the duties of a homilist, would be ready, we may believe, to sacrifice the more regular for a simpler, though more corrupt, structure and style. He possibly had in view the condition of his more lowly hearers, and the expediency of adopting a pronunciation intelligible to them, when he laid a strict injunction on every future scribe to preserve the orthography of his Manuscript. On these grounds the peculiar structure of Ormin's dialect would be no bar to the claim, which we should be disposed with others to allow him among the writers of the early part of the thirteenth century. There seems indeed some ground for the conjecture which would assign the date to a still later period in the century to which we have attributed it. In the year 1229 the Council of Toulouse, in the 14th Canon of its Decrees, strictly prohibited the laity from possessing a copy of the Scriptures, except the Psalter and such portions as are contained in all cases, genders, and numbers. We may except the dat. þen (þan A.S.) in the corrupt form 'forr þe naness.' 6. We find also the pron. þe33, þe33re, þe33m, of which forms the instances in the Ormulum are considered among the earliest.

certain books of Offices of the Church; any translation into the vulgar tongue[99] being equally forbidden. The occasion would appear to have been favourable for the composition of popular lectures and homilies, and might have suggested to Walter the labour which he imposed on his brother for that purpose, with a view to compensate in some measure for the privation of the Holy Volume. We might under these circumstances not unreasonably account for at least a part of that jealousy and opposition with which the work was received.

The question of the locality, as well as of the date, of the MS., is not without its difficulties. Those who have paid attention to the dialect agree in assigning it to one of the Anglian counties, but they vary as to the district. The late Mr. Garnett, who was familiar with its pages, was of opinion that 'the Ormulum was written a hundred miles or upwards to the south of Durham, and considered Peterborough not an unlikely locality[100].' Latham classes it among 'Northumbrian' productions[101]. Guest, taking a lower range of limit, is 'inclined to fix on some county north of Thames, and south of Lincoln,' and resting on the probability that the Chronicle, which contains the same permutation of the th as the Ormulum, was written by one of the monks of Peterborough, adds, 'it is by no means unlikely that Ormin lived in one of the neighbouring counties. The critics, who made him a native of the east of England, though they guessed in the dark, may not have guessed wrongly[102].'

The evidence of an Anglian origin seems supported on the following grounds, first, the tendency to reject West Saxon forms, and, secondly, the prevalence of Scandinavianisms.

1. In vowel sounds we find a preference for the simple instead of the complex, and the close instead of the open vowels[103].

2. The purity and number of the Scandinavianisms are remarkable. They are found not only in the vocabulary, but also in the termination of substantives, the phraseology, and the mode of computing time[104]. Ormin's dialect, in these instances at least, could scarcely be intelligible in any [102] Hist. of E. Rhythms, vol. ii. pp. 209, 409.

[103] As in the use of a for ea, a for eo, e for a, o, ea, and eo, e. g. all, wharrfenn, seofen, sefenn, þeode, manne, ec, ehhte, lede, for eall, hweorfan, seofan, þeoda, manna, eac, eahta, leode. A remarkable instance of the preference of e for eo will be found in the omission, nearly uniform, of o in the latter part of the MS. in the inserted leaves, and in the Ded. and Pref., as in the forms lede, þede, werelld, &c., the o having been written in the above words and in others in the first part of the MS., afterwards erased, and then rewritten. In these last-named instances the o has been retained in printing, in order to preserve the orthography. Perhaps the o was rejected as not essential for pronunciation. Cf. our word people, and v. Facsimile No. 2 for instances of the o rewritten over erasures in col. 85, lines 2, 7, and 8, in heoffness and leome.

[104] e. g. afledd, brixle, haȝherr, rowwst, scaldess, war, &c., at oferrdon, at hof, the terminations -lesse and -sunnd, the particle summ and occ in the phrases 'swa summ,' and 'ass occ ass,' and the phrases hallf feorþe, which occurs twice, expressing $3\frac{1}{2}$, where the West Saxons would have placed the ordinal first in the sentence, and have written feorþe healf. Perhaps in the Glossary the word 'Uppbrixle' should not strictly have been printed as a compound word, but as Upp brixle, the former being the Icelandic adverb upp, rendered 'in totum' by Haldörsen.

district where there was not a strong infusion of Norwegian and Danish blood. Some of the forms and inflexions would be familiar to a Northumbrian, as the use of þa for they, the infinitive termination in e, the omission of a final t in the second person of verbs, and the change of þ into t after ss. Of these dialectic distinctions and peculiarities, however, the instances are rare[105], nor are there any traces at all of the termination s in the plural of verbs, a characteristic which marks a northern origin, as evidenced in the texts of the Lindisfarne and Rushworth Gospels. On the other hand there is an occasional correspondence with the forms found in the Promptorium Parvulorum, the composition of an East-Anglian author of the 15th century. If the above evidence be of value, considering the existing difficulties attending the local classification both of MSS. and of dialects, there would seem to be more than conjectural grounds for placing Ormin's hearers in some district on the East coast of England, where the dialect would be influenced by their Northumbrian and East-Anglian neighbours. The locality of Peterborough would not, on these grounds, be inadmissible.

Ormin, who is considered to be the first of our English writers who has imitated the Latin rhythms, has composed his Homilies in verses of fifteen syllables, in two sections distinguished by the metrical point which is placed at the end of the eighth syllable or fourth foot. The verses have been printed by Tyrwhitt and Guest in one line, and by Thorpe in the Analecta, in consequence of the narrowness of the page, in two lines. The distinction, according to Guest, rests on the use of rhyme, and therefore in strictness the long line is more correct for unrhymed metre, and the couplets for that in which final rhyme is employed, as in those hymns of our Church service which are written in 'common metre[106].' The editor has risked the adoption of the couplet for the greater convenience of the reader, without violating the nature and smoothness of the rhythm, the pause at the end of the alternate lines, which correspond in length with the first section of the complete verse, being equivalent to the metrical point. Several expedients would seem to have been adopted by the author for the preservation of his rhythm: 1. the pronunciation of every syllable except in certain cases[107]; 2. the coalition of some vowels at the end of a word with the initial vowels of words that succeed them in the same sentence[108]; 3. that disregard of casal endings of substantives, adjectives, and pronouns, which has been already noticed as indicating progressive [107] The exceptions are, 1. the elision of e final when followed by a vowel or aspirate, as He sennde uss sone hiss word, &c. Introd. 83. 2. the pronunciation of eo as one syllable, as l. 8571, 'Þa shulenn beon off heore kinn;' 3. the pronunciation of Aaron, both as a dissyllable and a trisyllable, v. ll. 293, 295, 299.

[105] The infinitive in e has not been observed in more than two instances, viz. in to follȝhe, at l. 8030, and to loke, which is written in the margin of col. 230. v. Notes at ll. 9331-9334 and Addit. and Correct. p. 661. The omission of t in the 2nd pers. of verbs occurs probably not more than four times, viz. in 2 p. pr. sammness, at l. 12230, and in 2 p. p. wass. verb subst. at ll. 12804, 14379, 14385. [See also 2 p. pr. milhtess at l. 4682. R.H.] The change of þ into t after ss occurs in the phrases þess te bett. þess te bettre, þe s te mare, but in other instances the þ when similarly placed remains unchanged, as recless þær, l. 1702, bedess þatt, 1748, wha sitt iss þatt, 2641, &c.

[108] The coalition of letters, or crasis, takes place in the following instances; e.g. of final e with a, as þilde, namm; e with i, hēt, (he itt,) þēt, e with o, noff, (ne off.) e with u, nunnderstandenn, e with h, nafe, naffde, (ne hafe.) &c. with æ, næfre. The exceptions are, ȝiff þe iss lef, &c. l. 4664. ⁊ he iss, &c. 8595, wass he all, 8599: o with i, as ȝhōī, but ȝho i't once occurs as þatt ȝho itt, l. 1804, &c., o with u, tunnderrstanndenn, tunnbindenn: u with i, as þūt, (þu itt,) but not in l. 962, nu icc.: ȝȝ coalesces once with t, as þeȝȝt, (þeȝȝ itt), Acc þeȝȝt rihht nohht ne wisstenn, l. 19716.

change, but which seems connected with the attention which Ormin has paid to rhythm, and may also have had some effect in simplifying the structure of his dialect. There are terminal changes also occurring in prepositions and adverbs, which appear to have been used or omitted according as the rhythm or metre might require [109].

The following peculiarities seem chiefly to relate to pronunciation and orthography, but they could scarcely exist without affecting in some degree also the rhythm.

1. The duplication of letters forms a leading feature in the Ormulum, and is systematically observed throughout the work. It consists in doubling the consonant after a short vowel [110], when found in the same word [111]. A practice so unusual was not unobserved by a scholar so well versed in MSS. as Wanley, but he only incidentally and briefly notices it as one of which Ormin was singularly fond [112]. Thorpe, [109] e.g. fra mann to manne, l. 11219: to king, 8449; to kinge, 8370: to grund, 11773; to grunde, 12547: o faderr halff, 2269; o faderr hallfe, 2028: i Godess hus, 625; inn huse. 2112: off slap. 1903; off slæpe, 3143: þatt læredd folle, 1587; þatt lærede folle, 7440: att inn, 12926; att inne, 12739; off. offe; whæroff, 13694; whæroffe, 13704; of witezhunng, 14416; off witezhunnge, 14617.

[110] [i.e. after a vowel which in Ormin's time was pronounced short: for there are many words in the Ormulum in which, after a vowel which seems to be etymologically short. the consonant is not doubled; e.g. ange, atell, findenn. grund (cf. grunndwall, ll. 13372, 13382), mikell. ringenn, stingenn, wendenn; and again. there are some words in which the consonant is doubled after a vowel etymologically long, as. ātter, hāllzhenn, mānnsenn, prīmmsezznedd, shāmmfasst, unnhērrsummnesse, wīssdom. R.H.]

[111] e.g. Ormin writes þusennde, thousand. win, wine, with the single consonant, the preceding vowel being long, but þuss, thus. and blinnenn, to cease. with the double consonant. the preceding vowel being short, Occasionally he substitutes the usual mark of a short syllable, as in kĭne, sĭne, wĭnenn. elsewhere written kinne, sinne, winnenn.

[112] '. . duplicibus litteris is (sc. Orminus) mirifice fuit delectatus.' Wanley's Catal. p. 156.

in a note in the Analecta, seems to have discerned the true purport and benefit of this peculiarity, when he observes that it affords a clue 'to the pronunciation of our forefathers.'

2. We also find, with some exceptions, the change of the initial þ into t after words ending in d, dd, t, and tt. Exceptions occur in compounded words, or when a word with the initial þ is separated by the metrical point from that which precedes it, or lastly, in some instances, when it takes the vowel u after the þ, as in þu and þurrh[113].

3. There are certain marks employed by Ormin, the use of which it is not easy to determine, especially as they are not consistently observed. These marks take the form of the acute accent, and are found single, double, and threefold, whether followed by a vowel or consonant. When single, they may possibly denote either a long syllable or accent; when repeated, they may possibly mark a word as emphatic, or, if it be formed of two coalescing syllables, they may serve to distinguish it in such cases from a monosyllable. The threefold repetition of the stroke is not of obvious purport, particularly when it is placed over a syllable which elsewhere takes two marks[114].

And again,

All þurrh me sellfenn, manigꝛ word
þe rime swa to fillenn. D. 43, 44.

The rare instances where the þ is changed into t after words ending in ss have been already mentioned in note 105.

[114] The following are some of the cases above referred to, án, an, lætenn, lætenn, fór onn, fór till, mot, ūt off. ūtnumenn, ūt off, ꝛhōt haffde, ꝛhōtt forrhall, ꝛēt o, ꝛēt forr, ꝛēt alls, ꝛēt tanne, Márꝛe, Marꝛe.

The peculiarities above enumerated, both as regards the marks last noticed and the duplication of the letters, have, on orthographical grounds, been retained in the printed text.

In the preparation of the Glossary great care has been taken to give a copious vocabulary, a register of grammatical forms, and also instances of peculiarities of construction; references in all cases being made to the lines in the Dedication, Preface, and Introduction, and to the page and volume of the Homilies. Norse and Danish forms have been added to those taken from the Anglo-Saxon and other periods of the language, as tending in some degree to shew how far the influence of Scandinavian, as well as our native dialects, has prevailed in the composition of the Ormulum [115].

The Mœso-Gothic fragments of Ulfilas have also supplied opportunities of etymological comparison with the forms found in the earliest extant specimens of the Germanic branch of the Gothic family of languages [116].

[115] The chief authorities have been, 1. Bosworth's A.S. Dict. 2. 'Lexicon Islandico-Latino-Danicum Biörnonis Haldorsonii ex Manuscriptis Legati Arna-Magnæani cura R. K. Raskii editum. Præfatus est P. E. Muller. Havniæ. 1814.' 2 voll. 4to. 3. Promptorium Parvulorum, tom. i. being the only portion yet published.

[116] The examples are taken from the following valuable work, in which the authors seem to have accomplished what Rask despaired of seeing, when he declared in the Preface to the A S. Grammar that 'it was impossible to form from the Old-Saxon, the Frisic, the Francic, the Allemannic, and the Mœso-Gothic a complete grammar, much less a dictionary.' 'Ulfilas. Veteris et Novi Testamenti Versionsis Gothicæ Fragmenta quæ supersunt ad finem codd. castigata Latinitate donata adnotatione critica instructa conjunctis curis ediderunt H. C. De Gabelentz et Dr. J. Löbe. Adjectæ sunt Tabulæ duæ lapide expressæ. Lipsiæ, apud F. Brockhaus, 1843.' There is another title-page in addition to the above, adapted to the first volume, which contains the Text. There are title-pages also adapted to the 1st and 2nd parts of the second volume, which contain respectively the Glossary and Grammar, the former bearing the date of 1843, the latter that of 1846.

The Notes on the work contain quotations from authors which would appear to have been consulted by Ormin, and also, when legible, the erased portions of the MS. which, though fresh matter has been in some instances substituted for them, yet, as presenting us with the first thoughts of the author, have been considered of sufficient interest to be recorded. The Notes on the Glossary have afforded an opportunity for hazarding some etymological remarks, with occasional illustration from modern terms and phraseology. In the course of those remarks, as well as in the interpretation of his views of the vocabulary, grammatical structure, and dialect of the Ormulum, the editor cannot presume to have escaped errors, the liability to which has been increased through the want of any other copy of the Homilies, which might have thrown light on obscurities in language and construction. For such errors he throws himself on the indulgence of the candid reader, with the compensating hope that the following pages will supply to the philologist materials for investigating one of the most remarkable dialects of the English tongue [117].

[117] The following work appeared too late for any use to be made of it in the Glossary: 'Vorda Vealhstôd Engla and Seaxna. Lexicon Anglosaxonicum ex Poëtarum Scriptorumque Prosaicorum operibus necnon Lexicis Anglosaxonicis collectum, cum Synopsi Grammatica edidit Ludovicus Etmüllerus. Ph. Dr. &c. &c. Quedlingburgii et Lipsiæ, 1851.' 1 vol. 8vo. The same author published in the preceding year 'Engla and Seaxna Scôpas and Bôceras. Anglosaxonum Poëtæ atque Scriptores Prosaici, quorum partim integra opera, partim loca selecta collegit, correxit, edidit L. Etmüllerus, &c. Q. and L. 1850.' The above form vols. 28 and 29 of the 'Bibliothek der gesammten deutschen National-Literatur. &c.' There have been also published abroad recently; 1. 'Cædmon's des Angelsachsen Biblische Dichtungen. Herausgegeben von K. W. Bouterwek. Elberfeld, 1847, 1848.' 8vo. 2. 'Ein Angelsächsisches Glossar Von K. W. Bouterwek, &c. 1850.' 8vo. 3. during the progress of the work through the press. The editor, in conclusion, would not do justice to his own feelings, nor to the memory of an accomplished scholar and kind-hearted man, if he omitted to state that he has been much indebted to the late Reverend R. Garnett, Assistant-Keeper of the Printed Books in the British Museum, for suggestions in the early pages of the Glossary, being but too conscious that its value would have been greatly increased, could he have enjoyed the advantage of his friend's counsel till its completion.

DESCRIPTION OF THE MS.

The MS. consists of a single folio volume in an oblong form[1], written on parchment, for the most part in a peculiarly bold and firm hand, which from the numerous erasures would appear to be that of Ormin. A second hand appears to have been used in the marginal corrections and in the transcript of some of the inserted leaves; a third in supplying the MS. note at the fiftieth Text, and also Texts at the respective Homilies; and a fourth in a marginal addition at col. 230. The three last-mentioned hands have been further described in the notes[2]. The lines are written

[1] 'Librorum Manuscriptorum Bibl. Bodleianæ. Classis Nona. De linguis septentrionalibus Codices cxxi quos huic Academiæ Moriens legavit Vir Venerabilis et veterum Europæ Dialectorum Instaurator felix Franciscus Junius F. F. 5113. (MS. Jun. 1.) Liber oblongus Ormulum inscriptus, continens Harmonicon Historiæ Evangelicæ, cujus Textus Lat. et Commentat. in veteri Anglica seu potius Scotica lingua. Paginas continet 426. Folio memb. Ad finem apponuntur quarundam vocum Etymologiæ. Præfigitur Alphabetum Runicum cum hac notula, 'Jani Ulitii Bredæ, 1659.' Extract from 'Catalogi Librorum Manuscriptorum Angliæ et Hiberniæ in unum collecti cum Indice Alphabetico. Oxoniæ. E Theatro Sheldoniano, An. Dom. 1697.' p. 249.

[2] At the word wennchell in col. 85 of the MS., where that word occurs for the first time, a late hand has referred to col. '175;' at col. 175 is another reference to '85 m' (iddle) and '214 m,' and at 214 to '175 t'(op) and '340 m.' At 340 is the following note interlined also in the same hand, 'hac ipsa columna bis occurrit sicuti et proxima.' All these references having been made to the word wennchell, which is underlined at col. 340, point to the hand as being probably that of Lye, the editor of the Etymologicon Anglicanum, whose remarks on the word wennchell have been mentioned in the Notes on the Glossary at l. 3356.

continuously as prose, the sections of each being separated by the metrical point.

The leaves of the MS. vary in length from 13 to 20 inches, and in breadth from 4 to 8 inches. The cover or binding is of common pasteboard, and is $20\frac{1}{4}$ inches long and $8\frac{3}{4}$ wide. The leaves are altogether 90 in number. Of these the first two, which are fly-leaves, have been already noticed [v. p. liv. and p. lvi]. It may only therefore be necessary to add, that the second fly-leaf [v. Facsimile, No. 1] contains a Runic alphabet in large and small letters, with some contractions in that character, and with the two words Est and Amen illustrating the letters in both sizes. Over each of the letters in this alphabet, with the exception of the first six, and also over the contractions, are written the corresponding letters in English. There have been written some letters over the first six, but they have been since erased. Over the Runic letters forming the words Est and Amen is written 'Alphabetum Anglicum,' referring either to the insertion of English letters, or, which seems more probable, if we may judge from their position, to the characters in which the word Amen is interpreted, and which are placed parallel with the Runic characters forming that word.

On the seven following leaves[3] and in the first page of the eighth are written those portions of the MS. which, though not marked with any separate heading by the scribe, have, for convenience of reference, been distinguished in the [3] The first 7 leaves are thus appropriated. The first 4 pages and upper part of the 5th contain the Dedication. Of these the 1st and 2nd pages with the upper part of the 5th are in one column, the 3rd and 4th in 2 columns each. The lower part of the 5th and the whole of the pages following to the end of the 12th, with the lower part of the 14th, contain the Latin texts. Of these the lower part of the 5th, the whole of the 6th, part of the 11th, and part of the 12th, are in 2 columns; the 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, with parts of the 11th and 12th, as well as the lower part of the 14th, have one column. The 13th page and upper part of the 14th contain the Preface, each in one column.

Glossary as the Dedication, Texts, Preface, and Introduction. The Dedication commences the work, and extends to 342 lines. The Latin Texts still remaining have been numbered as 242 by the scribe, but altogether amount to 243, the number 198 having been written p. m. both before and after No. 199. The Preface contains 106 lines, beginning,

Þiss boc iss nemmnedd Orrmulum

and ending,

Þurrh þohht, þurrh word, þurrh dede.

These seven leaves have been written either in one or two columns, apparently for the economy of space. Then follow 81 leaves, of which two are imperfect[4], and 79 entire.

The Homilies are preceded by the short Introduction above noticed, which is contained in 108 lines, beginning,

All mannkinn fra þatt Adam wass

and ending,

To ȝarrkenn Cristess weȝȝess;

The Homilies are written in double columns throughout, which have been marked by a late hand in Arabic numerals; the whole, taking into account the defective state of the MS., amounting to 426 columns. There appears however one exception to the accuracy of this calculation, the particulars of which are detailed in the note on l. 12719.

There is also another series of figures, written in Roman numerals, in a hand which would seem to be of very early date, if it be not that of the author. These figures are nine in number, and are found respectively between the following

[4] Viz. the leaf mentioned in the notes at ll. 17331–17398, and that containing the fragments at the end of the printed text in vol. ii. For an account of a small fragment of a leaf, v. the note at l. 12719. There is also a small fragment at col. 180, on which the letters i . . so . . are written.

columns in the MS.: No. I. between coll. 1, 2; No. II. wanting; III. between 77, 78; IIII. between 125, 126; V. between 173, 174; VI. between 217, 218; VII. between 265, 266; VIII. between 309, 310; IX. between 373, 374.

Besides the leaves which form the MS. in its original state, there have been inserted in different parts of the volume twenty-nine leaves, containing corrections and additional matter. References to their insertion and contents have been given in the Notes.

The letters which are used in the MS., and of which a list will be found in Facsimile No. 2, may require a few remarks. Great pains have been taken to procure accurate tracings of the letters, and of a portion of the Latin texts, as well as of the work.

G. Two forms of the letter g have been used by Ormin, one apparently to express the hard strong sound, the other the soft sound of that letter. But it is singular, that for this purpose he uses for the soft sound a letter resembling the Anglo-Saxon ȝ, while for the hard sound he employs a new character, chiefly formed by the addition of a short stroke connecting the horizontal line with the bend in the curved line of the other character [v. Facsimile No. 3.] In the printed text the soft sound is represented by the A. S. letter ȝ, and the hard sound by the modern form of the letter. The form of the capital letter representing the soft sound differs in the MS. only in size from that of the small letter.

H is never found as an initial letter before consonants, and very rarely after liquids, perhaps not beyond the following instances; in burrhȝess and folhȝenn, the usual forms being burrȝhess and follȝhenn; and in lhude, which only occurs once, at l. 8142.

R. By reference to the Facsimile it will be seen that this letter takes three forms. The variation is observable chiefly where the second r is placed over that which is written on the line of the MS. Hence the character has become, through the change from the Anglo-Saxon þ, identical, or, nearly so, with the modern form of the letter r.

Þ, ð. Both these characters are used by Ormin to express the th, but the ð does not occur probably more than 108 times throughout the volume. It is found in the following words, [besides others, R. H.] which are also, and more frequently, written with the þ, viz. ða, conj. and pronoun, ðatt, conj. and pron. ðe, pron. ðezz, ðezzre, pron. ðing, ðiss, ðohhtess, forrði, oðerr, sellðe, swiðe. If we may judge from the position of the ð, which, in the greater number of instances, is used when the form of the letter in the word immediately above would have interfered with the form of þ, we may consider that Ormin employed the ð on no definite principle of orthography, but to avoid obscurity in his penmanship. An instance of such obscurity occurs at line 16581, which is explained in the Notes. The only deviation from the use of the þ appears to be in the word Elyzabæth, at col. 4, and line 231, where the letters th are written at length.

The usual marks of contraction are found over syllables that take the m or n, and, in some instances, over those that take r. Two different letters are sometimes found on one stroke, as the l and d in the word child. A similar mode of repeating the same letter takes place occasionally in the letters d, h, s, t, þ, ȝ, and þ.

These deviations from the usual mode of writing adopted by Ormin were occasioned probably by a wish to economize time and space, and, if that be so, we are indebted to his patience and liberality for their comparatively rare occurrence.

The A. S. letters þ and þ, and also the character ⁊ (and), are written in some places in the margin, but it is difficult to say with what view, unless as some guide to the reader, or as a private memorandum of the scribe.

Very few attempts at the illumination of capital letters occur in the volume. They are found in the following instances: 1. In A in the word Affterr, col. 209. l. 8347. 2. In p in the word pe, erroneously written by the scribe for þe, in erased text, at col. 227. l. 9161. 3. In Þ in Þatt, col. 230. l. 9335. 4. In A in Annd, in erased text, col. 256. l. 10257. 5. In A in Affterr, col. 354. l. 15538. 6. In A in Affterr, col. 390. l. 17888. 7. In A in Annd, in col. 390. l. 17906. 8. Col. 391. l. 17984. In the first stroke of the capital letter H in He, which formed the upright stroke of R, the rest of that letter having been obliterated, and the cross line as well as the right stroke of the H written over the erasure in black ink. All these initial letters, with the portion of the letter H mentioned in No. 8, have been written in green ink.

By an entry in a late hand at Text xxxii. of the series of Texts, to the effect that the fragment ended at that Text, it would appear that the portion now remaining corresponds with the extent of the volume as it was then known.

There seems therefore no reason to doubt that the MS. came into the possession of the University in its present mutilated state. The short Glossary mentioned by Tanner no longer exists, nor is there any recollection or trace of it on record. It may possibly have related to several words which have been underlined in the latter pages of the MS., but might have been already missing before Wanley's time, as he makes no mention of it in his account of the MS., an omission not probable, had he found it at the end of the volume when it came under his notice for description.

Then follows in 18 lines an account of a journey of our Lord in Galilee, noticed here by Ormin either through a mistake, in supposing, apparently without Scripture authority, that such a journey took place after the conversation with Nicodemus at Jerusalem (Homs. xxv, xxvi. John iii. 1–21), and before the departure into Judea (Hom. xxvii. John iii. 22), or in anticipation of the journey in Galilee, the events of which are detailed in Hom. xxx. (John iv. 1.)

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXIX. [xi. 2, 3.]

Johannes autem cum audisset in vinculis opera Christi, mittens duos de discipulis suis ait illi, Tu es qui venturus?

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXX. [xi. 11.]

Amen dico vobis, Non surrexit inter natos mulierum major Johanne Baptista.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXI. [xi. 25.]

In illo tempore respondens Jħs dixit, Confiteor tibi, Pater, Domine celi ȝ terre.

SECUNDUM LUCAM LXXXII. [x. 17.]

Reversi sunt autem septuaginta duo cum gaudio dicentes: Domine etiam demonia subiciuntur nobis in nomine tuo.

SECUNDUM LUCAM LXXXIII. [vi. 1.]

Factum est autem cum transirent per sata in sabbato vellebant discipuli ejus spicas, ȝ manducabant.

SECUNDUM LUCAM LXXXIIII. [vi. 6.]

Factum est autem ut intraret in synagogam in sabbato ȝ doceret, ȝ erat ibi homo, ȝ manus ejus dextra arida.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXV. [xii. 14.]

Exeuntes autem Farisei consilium faciebant adversus eum quomodo eum perderent.

SECUNDUM LUCAM LXXXVI. [xi. 14.]

Erat Jħs eiciens demonium, ȝ illud erat mutum. ȝ cum ejecisset demonium.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXVII. [xii. 30.]

Qui non est mecum, contra me est, ȝ qui non colligit mecum, spargit.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXVIII. [xii. 38.]

Responderunt ei quidam de Scribis, ȝ de Fariseis dicentes; Magister, volumus a te signum videre.

SECUNDUM LUCAM LXXXIX. [xi. 27.]

Loquente Jħu ad turbas, extollens vocem quedam mulier de turba dixit illi, Beatus venter.

SECUNDUM LUCAM LXXXX. [viii. 4, 5.]

Cum turba plurima conveniret, ȝ de civitatibus properarent ad eum, dixit per similitudinem: Exiit qui seminat.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXXI. [xiii. 24.]

Simile factum est regnum celorum homini qui seminavit bonum semen in agro suo.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXXII. [xiii. 31.]

Simile est regnum celorum grano sinapis ȝ cetera.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXXIII. [xiii. 44.]

Simile est regnum celorum thesauro abscondito in agro.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM LXXXXIIII. [xiii. 53, 54.]

Cum consummasset Jħs parabolas istas, transiit inde. ȝ veniens in patriam suam docebat eos in synagogis eorum.

SECUNDUM MARCUM LXXXXV. [vi. 17, 21.]

Herodes misit, ȝ tenuit Johannem, ȝ vinxit eum in carcere propter Herody uxorem Philip fratris sui, quia duxerat, ȝ cum dies opportunus accidisset.

Subiit ergo in montem Jħs ⁊ ibi sedebat cum discipulis suis. Erat autem proximum Pasca.

SECUNDUM LUCAM LXXXXVIII. [Marc. vi. 47.]

Cum sero factum esset, erat navis in medio mari, ⁊ ipse solus in terra.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM LXXXXIX. [vi. 22.]

Altera die turba que stabat trans mare vidit quia non erat ibi alia navicula nisi una.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM C. [vi. 27.]

Operamini non cibum qui perit.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CI. [vi. 37.]

Omne quod dat mihi pater, ad me veniet.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CII. [vi. 41.]

Murmurabant ergo Judei de illo quia dixisset: Ego sum panis qui de celis descendi.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CIII. [vi. 51.]

Ego sum panis vivus, qui descendi de celis.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CIIII. [vi. 54.]

Amen, Amen, dico vobis: Nisi manducaveritis carnem Filii hominis.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CV. [xiv. 34, 35.]

⁊ cum transfretassent, venerunt in terram Genesar ⁊ cum cognovissent eum viri loci illius.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CVI. [xv. 1, 2.]

Tunc accesserunt ad eum ab Jerosolymis Scribe et Farisei dicentes: Quare discipuli tui transgrediuntur traditiones patrum suorum? non enim manus lavant cum panem manducant.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CVII. [xv. 21, 22.]

Egressus inde Jħs secessit in partes Tyri ȝ Sidonis. ȝ ecce mulier Cananea.

SECUNDUM MARCUM CVIII. [vii. 31.]

Exiens de finibus Tyri venit per Sydonem ad mare Galilee inter medios fines Decapoleos.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CIX. [xv. 29, 30.]

SECUNDUM MARCUM CX. [viii. 1, 2.]

Cum multa turba esset cum Jħu nec haberent quod manducarent, convocatis discipulis, ait illis: Misereor super turbam, quia ecce jam triduo sustinent.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXI. [xv. 39.]

Et dimissa turba ascendit in naviculam, ȝ venit in fines Mageda.

SECUNDUM MARCAM CXII. [viii. 22, 23.]

ȝ veniunt Bethsaydam, ȝ adducunt ei cecum, ȝ rogabant eum, ut eum tangeret. Et apprehendens manum ejus.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXIII. [xvi. 13.]

Venit Jesus in partes Cesaree Philippi.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXIIII. [xvi. 20.]

Tunc precepit discipulis suis ut nemini dicerent quod esset χρc̄ Jħs.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXV. [xvi. 24.]

Si quis vult post me venire, abneget semetipsum ȝ tollat crucem suam ȝ sequatur me.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXVI. [xvii. 1, 2.]

℈ post dies sex assumpsit Jħs Petrum ℈ Jacobum ℈ Johannem, ℈ ducit eos in montem excelsum seorsum, ℈ transfiguratus est ante eos.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXVII. [xvii. 10.]

Interrogaverunt Jħm discipuli ejus dicentes: Quid ergo Scribe dicunt quod Heliam oporteat primum venire?

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXVIII. [xvii. 14.]

Cum venisset Jħs ad turbam, accessit ad eum homo genibus provolutus ante eum dicens, Domine, miserere filio meo, quia lunaticus est.

SECUNDUM MARCUM CXIX. [ix. 29.]

Inde profecti pretergrediebantur Galileam, nec volebat quenquam scire.

SECUNDUM MARCUM CXX. [ix. 37.]

Respondit illi Johannes dicens: Magister, vidimus quendam in nomine tuo cicientem demonia.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXI. [xviii. 1.]

In illa hora accesserunt discipuli ad Jesum dicentes: Quis, putas, major est in regno celorum?

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXII. [xviii. 15.]

Si autem peccaverit in te frater tuus, vade ℈ corripe eum inter te et ipsum solum.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXIII. [xviii. 19.]

Iterum dico vobis, quod si duo ex vobis consenserint super terram de omni re quacunque.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXIIII. [xviii. 23.]

Ideo assimilatum est regnum celorum homini regi, qui voluit rationem ponere cum servis suis.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXV. [xix. 1, 2.]

⁊ factum est cum consummasset Jħs sermones istos, migravit a Galilea, ⁊ venit in fines Judee trans Jordanem. ⁊ secute sunt eum turbe multe, ⁊ curavit eos ibi.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXVI. [xix. 13.]

Tunc oblati sunt ei parvuli ut manus eis imponeret, ⁊ oraret.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXVII. [xix. 16.]

Tunc unus accedens ait illi: Magister bone, quid boni faciam, ut habeam vitam eternam?

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXVIII. [xix. 27.]

Ecce nos reliquimus omnia, ⁊ secuti sumus te; quid ergo erit nobis premii?

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXXIX. [xx. 1.]

Simile est regnum celorum homini patrifamilias, qui exiit primo mane conducere operarios in vineam suam.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXX. [x. 23, 24, 25.]

⁊ conversus ad discipulos suos aliquanto ait: Beati oculi qui vident que vos videtis. Dico autem vobis quod multi prophete ⁊ reges voluerunt videre que vos videtis, ⁊ non viderunt, ⁊ audire que auditis, ⁊ non audierunt. ⁊ ecce quidam legisperitus surrexit.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXI. [x. 38.]

Intravit Jħs in quoddam castellum, ⁊ mulier quedam Martha nomine excepit illum in domum suam.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXII. [xi. 37, 38.]

Rogavit Jħm quidam Faryseus ut pranderet apud se, ⁊ ingressus discubuit. Phariseus autem cepit intra se reputans dicere, quare non baptizatus esset ante prandium.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXIII. [xii. 13, 14.]

Ait autem quidam ei de turba: Magister, dic fratri meo, ut dividat mecum hereditatem. ℩ ille dixit ei: Homo, quis me constituit judicem aut divisorem super vos?

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXIIII. [xii. 32.]

Nolite timere pusillus grex, quia complacuit Patri meo dare vobis regnum.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXV. [xii. 35.]

Sint lumbi vestri precincti ℩ lucerne ardentes in manibus vestris.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXVI. [xii. 45.]

Quod si dixerit servus ille: Moram facit dominus venire, ℩ ceperit percutere pueros ℩ ancillas.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXVII. [xiii. 1.]

Aderant autem quidam ipso in tempore nuntiantes illi de Galileis, quorum sanguinem Pilatus miscuit cum sacrificiis eorum.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXVIII. [xiii. 6.]

Dicebat autem hanc similitudinem. Arborem fici habebat quidam plantatam in vinea sua.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXIX. [xiii. 31.]

In illo tempore accesserunt quidam Faryseorum dicentes illi: Exi ℩ vade hinc, quia Herodes vult te occidere.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXXXX. [xiv. 12.]

Cum facis prandium aut cenam, noli vocare amicos tuos, neque fratres tuos, neque cognatos, neque vicinos divites.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CXLI. [xxii. 2.]

Simile factum est regnum celorum homini regi, qui fecit nuptias filio suo.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXLII. [xiv. 26.]

Si quis venit ad me ȝ non odit patrem suum aut matrem, ȝ uxorem, ȝ filios, ȝ fratres, ȝ sorores.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXLIII. [xv. 1, 2.]

Erant autem appropinquantes ei puplicani ȝ peccatores ut audirent illum. Murmurabant autem Farysei ȝ Scribe dicentes, quia hic peccatores recipit, ȝ manducat cum illis.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXLIIII. [xv. 11, 12.]

Homo quidam habuit duos filios, ȝ dixit adolescentior ex illis patri: Pater, da mihi portionem substantie que me contingit.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXLV. [xvi. 1.]

Homo quidam erat dives qui habebat villicum, ȝ hic diffamatus est apud illum, quasi dissipasset bona illius.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXLVI. [xvi. 19.]

Homo quidam erat dives, ȝ induebatur purpura ȝ bisso.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CXLVII. [xvii. 5, 6.]

Dixerunt Apostoli Domino: Adauge nobis fidem. Dixit autem Dominus: Si habueritis fidem sicut granum synapis, dicetis huic arbori moro: Eradicare.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CXLVIII. [vii. 2.]

Erat autem in proximo dies festus Judeorum Cenofegya.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CXLIX. [vii. 14.]

Jam autem die festo mediante ascendit Jħs in templum.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CL. [vii. 32.]

Audierunt Farysei turbam murmurantem hec, ȝ miserunt principes ȝ Farisei ministros ut apprehenderent Jħum.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLI. [viii. 1, 2, 3.]

Jħs autem perrexit in montem Oliveti, ȝ diluculo venit in templum, ȝ omnis populus veniebat ad eum, ȝ ipse sedens docebat eos. Adducunt autem Pharisei mulierem in adulterio deprehensam.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLII. [viii. 12.]

Iterum locutus est Jħs dicens: Ego sum lux mundi; qui sequitur me non ambulat in tenebris, sed habet lumen vitæ.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLIII. [viii. 21.]

Dixit ergo iterum eis Jħs: Ego vado ȝ queretis me, ȝ in peccato vestro moriemini.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLIIII. [viii. 46.]

Quis ex vobis arguet me de peccato? Si veritatem dico, quare non creditis mihi?

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLV. [ix. 1, 2.]

ȝ preteriens Jħs vidit hominem cecum a nativitate. ȝ interrogaverunt eum discipuli ejus, Rabbi, quis peccavit, hic aut parentes ejus, ut cecus nasceretur?

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLVI. [ix. 39.]

Dixit eis Jħs: In juditium ego in hunc mundum veni, ut qui non vident, videant, ȝ qui vident, ceci fiant.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLVII. [x. 1.]

Amen, Amen, dico vobis: Qui non intrat per hostium in ovile ovium, sed ascendit aliunde, ille fur est ȝ latro.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLVIII. [x. 11.]

Ego sum pastor bonus. Bonus pastor animam suam dat pro ovibus suis.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLIX. [x. 17.]

Propterea Pater me diligit, quia ego pono animam meam ⁊ iterum sumo eam.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLX. [x. 22, 23.]

Facta sunt autem Encenya Jerosolimis, et hiems erat. ⁊ ambulabat Jħs in templo in porticu Salomonis.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXI. [xx. 17, 18.]

Ascendens Jħs Jerosolimam assumpsit duodecim discipulos suos secreto ⁊ ait illis: Ecce ascendimus Jerosolimam, ⁊ Filius hominis tradetur principibus sacerdotum, ⁊ scribis, ⁊ condemnabunt eum morte.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXII. [xviii. 35.]

Factum est autem cum appropinquaret Jerycho, cecus quidam sedebat secus viam, mendicans.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXIII. [xix. 1, 2.]

⁊ ingressus perambulabat Jerycho. ⁊ ecce vir nomine Zacheus.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXIIII. [xix. 11, 12.]

Hec illis audientibus, adiciens dixit parabolam eo quod esset prope Jerusalem, ⁊ quia estimarent quod confestim regnum Dei manifestaretur. Dixit ergo: Homo quidam nobilis abiit in regionem longinquam accipere sibi regnum ⁊ reverti.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLXIIIII. [xi. 1.]

Erat autem quidam languens Lazarus, a Bethanya de castello Marie ⁊ Marthe sororis ejus.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLXVI. [xi. 47.]

Collegerunt ergo Pontifices ⁊ Farysei concilium ⁊ dicebant: Quid faciemus, quia hic homo multa signa facit?

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLXVII. [xii. 1.]

Ante sex dies Pasche venit Jħs Bethanyam.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXVIII. [xxi. 1.]

Cum appropinquaret Jħs Jerosolimis ⁊ venisset Bethfage ad montem Oliveti.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXIX. [xix. 41, 42.]

Cum appropinquaret Jħs Jerosolimam videns civitatem flevit super illam dicens: Quia si cognovisses ⁊ tu.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLXX. [xii. 24, 25.]

Amen Amen dico vobis; Nisi granum frumenti cadens in terra mortuum fuerit, ipsum solum manet.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLXXI. [xii. 37, 38.]

Cum autem tanta signa fecisset coram eis, non crediderunt in eum, ut sermo Ysaye prophete impleretur quem dixit: Domine, quis credidit auditui nostro?

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CLXXII. [xii. 44, 45.]

Dixit Jħs turbis Judeorum: Qui credit in me, non credit in me, sed in eum qui misit me. ⁊ qui videt me, videt eum qui misit me.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXIII. [xxi. 10.]

Cum intrasset Jħs Jerosolimam, commota est universa civitas, dicens: Quis est hic?

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXIIII. [xxi. 18, 19.]

Mane autem revertens in civitatem esuriit. ⁊ videns fici arborem unam secus viam venit ad eam, ⁊ nichil invenit in ea, nisi folia tantum.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXIIIII. [xx. 1, 2.]

Factum est autem in una dierum, docente illo populum ⁊ evangelizante, convenerunt principes sacerdotum ⁊ scribe cum senioribus. ⁊ aiunt dicentes ad illum: Dic nobis in qua potestate hec facis.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXVI. [xxi. 28.]

Quid autem vobis videtur? Homo quidam habuit duos filios ⁊ accedens ad primum, dixit: Fili vade hodie operari in vinea mea.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXVII. [xxi. 33.]

Homo erat paterfamilias qui plantavit vineam ⁊ sepem circumdedit ei.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXVIII. [xxii. 15, 16.]

Tunc abeuntes Pharisei inierunt consilium ut caperent Jħm in sermone. ⁊ mittunt ei discipulos suos cum Herodianis.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXIX. [xxii. 23.]

In illo die accesserunt ad eum Saducei qui dicunt non esse resurrectionem.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXX. [xxii. 34.]

Pharysei autem audientes quod silentium imposuisset Jħs Saduceis convenerunt in unum.

SECUNDUM MARCUM CLXXXI. [xii. 41.]

Et sedens Jesus contra gazofilatium aspiciebat quomodo turba jactaret es in gazofilatium.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXII. [xxiii. 1, 2.]

Tunc locutus est Jħs ad turbas, ⁊ ad discipulos suos, dicens: Super chathedram Moysi sederunt Scribe et Farisei.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXIII. [xxiii. 13.]

Ve autem vobis Scribe et Farysei ypocrite, qui clauditis regnum celorum ante homines.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXIIII. [Matt. xxiii. 23, Lu. xi. 42.]

Ve vobis Scribe ȝ Farysei ypocrite qui decimatis mentam ȝ rutam ȝ omne holus, ȝ preteritis juditium ȝ caritatem Dei, ȝ fidem.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXIIIII. [xxiii. 27.]

Ve vobis Scribe ȝ Farisei ypocrite, quia similes estis sepulcris dealbatis.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXVI. [xxiii. 34.]

Ideo ecce ego mitto ad vos prophetas, ȝ sapientes, ȝ scribas

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXVII. [xxiv. 1.]

ȝ egressus Jħs de templo ibat, ȝ accesserunt ad eum discipuli ejus, ut ostenderent ei edificationes templi.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXVIII. [xxiv. 14.]

ȝ predicabitur hoc evangelium regni in toto orbe, in testimonium omnibus gentibus, ȝ tunc erit consummatio.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXVIIII. [xvii. 20.]

Interrogatus autem a Faryseis quando venit regnum Dei, respondit eis ȝ dixit: Non venit regnum Dei cum observatione.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXX. [xxi. 25.]

Erunt signa in sole ȝ luna, ȝ stellis.

SECUNDUM MARCUM CLXXXXI. [xiii. 33.]

Videte, vigilate, ȝ orate, nescitis enim quando tempus sit.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXXII. [xxiv. 42, 43.]

Vigilate ergo, quia nescitis qua hora dominus vester venturus sit; illud autem scitote, quia si sciret paterfamilias.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXXIII. [xxv. 1.]

Tunc simile erit regnum celorum decem virginibus.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXXIIII. [xviii. 1, 2.]

Dicebat autem ȝ parabolam ad illos, quoniam oportet semper orare, ȝ non deficere, Judex quidam erat in quadam civitate.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXXIIIII. [xviii. 9, 10.]

Dixit autem ȝ ad quosdam qui in se confidebant tamquam justi, ȝ aspernabantur ceteros, parabolam istam. Duo homines ascenderunt in templum ut orarent.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXXVI. [xxv. 14, 15.]

Homo quidam peregre proficiscens vocavit servos suos, ȝ tradidit illis bona sua, ȝ uni dedit quinque talenta.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXXVII. [xxv. 31, 32.]

Cum venerit Filius hominis in majestate sua, ȝ omnes angeli cum eo; tunc sedebit super sedem majestatis sue, ȝ congregabuntur ante eum omnes gentes, ȝ separabit eos ab invicem procul; sicut pastor segregat oves ab hedis.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXXVIII. [xxi. 37, 38.]

Erat autem Jħs diebus docens in templo, noctibus vero exiens, morabatur in monte qui vocatur Oliveti, maneque confluebat ad eum omnis populus in templo audire eum.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CLXXXXVIIII. [xxvi. 1, 2.]

Factum est autem cum consummasset Jħs sermones hos omnes, dixit discipulis suis: Scitis quia post biduum Pascha fiet, ȝ Filius hominis tradetur ut crucifigatur.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXXVIII. (sic MS.) [xxii. 1, 2.]

Appropinquabat autem dies festus azimorum qui dicitur Pascha, ȝ querebant principes sacerdotum ȝ Scribe quomodo eum interficerent.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CLXXXXX. [xxii. 7.]

Venit autem dies azimorum in qua necesse erat occidi Pascha.

De agno paschali sequitur ducentesima prima Omelya.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CCII. [xxii. 14, 15.]

Et cum facta esset hora, discubuit, ȝ xii Apostoli cum eo, ȝ ait illis: Desiderio desideravi hoc Pascha manducare vobiscum.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CCIII. [xxii. 24.]

Facta est autem contentio inter eos, quis eorum videretur esse major.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCIIII. [xiii. 1.]

Sciens Jȟs quia venit hora, ut transeat de hoc mundo ad Patrem, cum dilexisset suos qui erant in mundo, in finem dilexit eos.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCIIIII. [xiii. 16.]

Amen, Amen dico vobis: Non est servus major domino suo, neque Apostolus major eo qui misit illum.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCVI. [xiii. 33.]

Filioli, adhuc modicum vobiscum sum; queretis me, ȝ sicut dixi Judeis, quo ego vado, vos non potestis venire.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCVII. [xiv. 1.]

Non turbetur cor vestrum; creditis in Deum, ȝ in me credite.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCVIII. [xiv. 15, 16.]

Si diligitis me, mandata mea servate; ȝ ego rogabo Patrem, ȝ alium Paraclitum dabit vobis.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCVIIII. [xiv. 23.]

Si quis diligit me, sermonem meum servabit, ȝ Pater meus diliget eum, ȝ ad eum veniemus.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCX. [xv. 1, 2.]

Ego sum vitis vera, ⁊ Pater meus agricola est. Omnem palmitem in me non ferentem fructum, tollet eum.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXI. [xv. 7.]

Si manseritis in me, ⁊ verba mea in vobis manserint; quodcunque volueritis petetis, ⁊ fiet vobis.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXII. [xv. 12.]

Hoc est preceptum meum, ut diligatis invicem, sicut dilexi vos.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXIII. [xv. 17, 18.]

Hec mando vobis ut diligatis invicem. Si mundus vos odit, scitote quia priorem me vobis odio habuit.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXIIII. [xv. 26.]

Cum autem venerit Paraclitus, quem ego mittam vobis a Patre, Spiritum veritatis.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXIIIII. [xvi. 5.]

Hec autem ab initio non dixi vobis, quia vobiscum eram. ⁊ nunc vado ad eum qui me misit, ⁊ nemo ex vobis interrogat me, Quo vadis?

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXVI. [xvi. 16.]

Modicum, ⁊ jam non videbitis me.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXVII. [xvi. 23, 24.]

Amen, Amen dico vobis; si quid petieritis Patrem in nomine meo, dabit vobis. Usque modo non petistis quicquam in nomine meo.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXVIII. [xvii. 1.]

Hec locutus est Jĥs, ⁊ sublevatis oculis in celum, dixit; Pater, venit hora, clarifica filium tuum, ut filius tuus clarificet te.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXVIIII. [xvii. 11.]

Pater sancte, serva eos in nomine tuo quos dedisti mihi, ut sint unum sicut ⁊ nos.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXX. [xviii. 1.]

Hec cum dixisset Jħs, egressus est cum discipulis suis.

SECUNDUM MARCUM CCXXI. [xvi. 1.]

Maria Magdalene, ⁊ Maria Jacobi, ⁊ Salome, emerunt aromata, ut venientes ungerent Jesum; ·

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXXII. [xx. 11.]

Maria stabat ad monumentum foris plorans.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CCXXIII. [xxviii. 8, 9.]

Exierunt de monumento cum timore ⁊ gaudio magno currentess nuntiare discipulis ejus. ⁊ ecce Jħs occurrit illis, dicens, Avete.

SECUNDUM MATHEUM CCXXIIII. [xxviii. 11.]

Cum autem mulieres abissent, ecce quidam de custodibus venerunt in civitatem, ⁊ nuntiaverunt principibus sacerdotum omnia que facta fuerant.

SECUNDUM LUCAM CCXXIIIII. [xxiv. 13.]

Ecce duo ex discipulis Jesu ibant ipsa die in castellum.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXXVI. [xx. 19.]

Cum esset sero die illo, una sabbatorum.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXXVII. [xxi. 1.]

Postea manifestavit se iterum Jħs ad mare Tyberiadis.

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXXVIII. [xxi. 15.]

Cum ergo prandissent, dixit Jħs Symoni Petro: Symon Johannis, diligis me plus his?

SECUNDUM JOHANNEM CCXXVIIII. [xxi. 19, 20.]

Dixit Jħs Petro: Sequere me. Conversus Petrus vidit illum discipulum sequentem ꝛc.

SECUNDUM MARCUM CCXXX. [xvi. 14.]

Novissime autem recumbentibus illis undecim apparuit Jħs, ꝛ exprobravit incredulitatem eorum, ꝛ duritiam cordis.

DE ACTIBUS APOSTOLORUM CCXXXI. [cap. 1.]

Quomodo discipuli Jesu cum virgine Maria regressi sunt in Jerusalem mox postquam Dominus receptus est in celum.

CCXXXII. [cap. 2.]

Quomodo Spiritus Sanctus venit super Apostolos in linguis igneis.

CCXXXIII. [cap. 3.]

Quomodo Petruss et Johanness asscendentes in templum ad horam orationis nonam sanabant claudum.

CCXXXIIII. [cap. 5.]

Quomodo Ananyas ꝛ Saphyra uxor ejus perierunt propter fraudem pecunie sue quam fecerunt non homini sed Deo.

CCXXXV. [v. 18, 19.]

Quomodo Apostoli per Angelum educti sunt de carcere, ꝛ jussi predicare in templo.

CCXXXVI. [cap. 6.]

Quomodo Apostoli ordinaverunt septem diaconos, quorum unus erat prothomartyr Stephanus.

CCXXXVII. [cap. 8.]

Quomodo Samaritani susceperunt fidem per predicationem Filippi, qui erat unus ex vii diaconibus quos Apostoli ordinav-erant in primitiva Ecclesia, ⁊ quomodo susceperunt Spiritum Sanctum per impositionem manus Petri ⁊ Johannis, ⁊ quomodo Symon Magus traditus erat eterne dampnationi per maledictionem Petri, eo quod voluit per pecuniam emere sibi dona Sancti Spiritus.

CCXXXVIII. [cap. 9.]

De conversione beati Pauli Apostoli, ⁊ quomodo predicabat Judeis quia Jesus est Filius Dei. Quare voluerunt eum occidere, sed evasit manus eorum, ⁊ venit Jerosolimam videre Apostolos, ⁊ ibi disputavit cum Grecis; ⁊ non valentes ei resistere voluerunt eum occidere, ⁊ evasit quia Apostoli duxerunt eum Cesaream, inde venit Tarsum. In diebus illis erat pax in ecclesia in terra Jerusalem, ⁊ in Galilea, ⁊ in tota Samaria, ⁊ ecclesia crevit cotidie per gratiam Sancti Spiritus.

CCXXXIX. [cap. 9.]

De miraculis Petri in Lydda, ⁊ in Joppe, ⁊ quomodo exivit de carcere Herodis per Angelum.

CCXL. [capp. 13, 14.]

De miraculis Pauli in Pafo provintia, ⁊ in Lycaonia provintia, ⁊ quomodo voluerunt ibi in Listra offerre ei sacrifitia quasi esset deus, quia sanavit claudum. (xiv. 12, &c.) ⁊ quomodo venerunt eodem die Judei de Antiochya, ⁊ accepta licentia a principibus civitatis lapidaverunt Paulum, ⁊ extra urbem ut mortuum traxerunt, sed regressus in civitatem iterum predicavit. Inde venit Macedoniam, ⁊ ibi in villa que vocatur Filippus liberavit virginem phitonissam, (xvi. 16, &c.) ⁊ ibi graviter verberatus ⁊ vulneratus trusus est in carcerem, sed ipso soluto ⁊ carcere reserato per Angelum noluit exire, sed expectavit custodess, qui videntes miraculum crediderunt in Xρm. Inde venit Athenas (xvii. 15.) ⁊ convertit ad fidem beatum Dionisium ȝ alios multos Grecos. Inde venit Efesum (cap. 19.) ȝ ibi baptizavit xii viros ȝ dedit eis Spiritum Sanctum per manus impositionem; ȝ multi susceperunt fidem per miracula que ibi fecit. (xx. 6.) Inde venit Troadem, ȝ ibi resuscitavit mortuum Ewwticum nomine.

CCXLI. [x. 1, &c.]

De sancto Petro quomodo venit vas ad eum plenum bestiis, ȝ quomodo convertit Cornelium ȝ multos alios Gentiles quibus ȝ dedit Spiritum Sanctum.

CCXLII.

Quomodo Petrus venit Antiochiam ȝ sanavit ibi magnam turbam languentium, ȝ fuit ibi Patriarcha septem annis; deinde posuit ibi alium Episcopum ȝ recessit predicare, ȝ predicavit per biennium, deinde venit . . . . . .
